Dull Politics a Happy Land.
Watching the Condemned.
O'Casey's Surprise.
Jehovah in War.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

"HAPPY the nation that has no history" was said when history meant wars.

Happy is this nation that can afford to take so little interest in nominations to be made at Kansas City this week, and at Houston later.

THE extent to which the country runs itself, and gets along somehow, is shown in lack of serious public interest in the nation's most important task.

Our President, once elected, has more power than any reigning monarch. And our people take it for granted that everything will be all right, no matter who is elected.

IS it not a fact that half the voters, at least, are more interested in this years' new automobile than in this year's new president?

Our solemn fathers were careful in arranging the new government. The people were to rule, but not absolutely. They would choose electors, superior men, and the electors would select the president.

Now politicians and corporations, about which the fathers knew nothing, take the responsibility, while the people look on, taking things as they come, quite content.

WINTER visitors to the Riviera, looking over the blue Mediterranean, often say to a secretary, or servant, "look in the paper and see what the weather is like in New York."

If New York is freezing, the Riviera dweller is happier.

COTTON MATHER assured his Puritan New England congregation that the blessed in Heaven would be permitted to look down and see friends burning in hell—and made happier by the sight.

TO make your own lot seem bearable, think of brave Gen. Nobile and his crew, adrift on Polar ice.

That ice is frightfully rough, often piled up in hummocks, each a small mountain. The gas bag, "dirigible" no longer drifts and drags at the mercy of the winds. To abandon that dangerous, shifting shelter and its food and heat supplies would be fatal. Seeing and killing an occasional bear is the only hope as the fliers wait for rescue.

Those brave Italians need all the courage and fortitude that took them on their perilous adventure.

SEAN O'CASEY, living in Ireland, wrote fine Irish plays, "Juno and the Paycock," "The Plough and the Stars," and other great successes.

O'CASEY went to London, got a wife, a dress suit, and, perhaps a slight English accent, and now the Irish players refuse to produce his latest work, "The Silver Tassle."

W. B. YEATS, who would like to be friendly, says the play is too long, without substance, and gets nowhere.

POOR O'Casey is shocked and surprised, but his experience is not new. When Robert Burns went to live in Edinburgh, met fine ladies with titles, and wrote sonnets, his stuff was worthless. If Bunyan had written "Pilgrim's Progress" at the Ritz, instead of writing it in jail, it would not have lived. A man reflects his environment, and conditions about him.

SOME churches refuse to join a hymn-singing contest because they don't like Kipling's "Hymn Before Action."

They say Kipling's blood-and-thunder composition would not please the Lord, forgetting some fighting advice that Jehovah gives to his chosen people in the Old Testament.

ONE Kipling verse read:

The earth is full of anger, the seas are dark with wrath.
The nations in their harness go up against our path.
Ere yet we lose the legions, ere yet we draw the blade,
Jehovah of the Thunders, Lord God of Battles, aid.

One clergyman says: "That's not fit to be sung by the congregation of a Christian church."

YET, if war started, that congregation and its clergyman would be all for fighting, anxious to hear of enemies slain.

The main difficulty would be convincing the post-war crop of young men that they should go to sit in trench mud, while others sang hymns and prayed for them.

CORRESPONDENTS in Kansas City, nearly all, believe the first big block of votes will be cast for President Coolidge. Tomorrow will be an interesting day in the country's politic l history, and some may be surprised, as they have not been surprised before. It may comfort you to know that the average delegate is in the dark as completely as you are.

SENATOR WATSON, who believes that he would about fill the bill, complains that "Hoover and Gov. Smith have nothing to say for themselves." Possibly they are leaving the "saying" to the voters, and to their friends.

Calvin Coolidge has convinced the public that a man may be wisely economical in speech, as in other things.

OUR French friends are coming slowly but surely out of their heavy war troubles. Gold is accumulating in the French treasury by hundreds of millions. And for the first five months of this year, the treasury's tax receipts have exceeded estimates by a billion francs. This is good news for France and the rest of the world. Each nation is the customer of the other nations, and prosperous customers make good business.

MEXICO'S LINDY ON NON-STOP U. S. HOP

MEXICO CITY, June 11.—(AP.)—Returning Col. Lindbergh's good will flight from Washington to Mexico City, Capt. Emilio Carranza, known as Mexico's Lindbergh, took off from the Valbuena flying field on a non-stop flight for Washington at 8:10 a. m. today.

His plane, the Excelsior-Mexico, took the air after a run of approximately 3,000 yards, circled the field once and then headed for Tampico. It carried 326 gallons of gasoline, sufficient for a 30-hour flight.

The flier expected to reach Washington within 20 hours, or between 6 and 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. His route was by way of Tampico, New Orleans, Montgomery and Atlanta to Washington.

Carranza's non-stop flight from San Diego, Cal., to Mexico City made him a national hero. It was the greatest flight a Mexican had ever made. The other outstanding Mexican aviation achievement up to that time also had been made by Carranza. This was a non-stop flight from Mexico City to Ciudad Juarez, opposite El Paso, Tex., last September.

During the Mexico City-Juarez flight, made in a Mexican built army plane, one of the wings caught fire. Carranza saw a storm ahead and ran his plane into a rain cloud. The rain extinguished the blaze and he successfully completed the flight.

READY TO HOP ON HOOVER WAGON

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

ABOARD PENNSYLVANIA DELEGATION SPECIAL, En Route to Kansas City, June 11.—Unless Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon is able to produce definite word that President Coolidge will accept the nomination or a reasonable amount of assurance that a move for Gen. John J. Pershing or some other "dark horse" has a chance of success, he may face a revolt in the Pennsylvania delegation, unless he swings his support to Herbert Hoover on the first ballot.

Delegates allied with Senator William S. Vare, of Philadelphia, and Joseph R. Grundy, head of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, are determined to fight to the last ditch against any effort to delay a decision by giving meaningless complimentary votes on the first few ballots to favorite sons.

SENTIMENT FOR HOOVER

Their attitude is that unless President Coolidge clearly indicates that he will accept if "drafted," and unless Secretary Mellon and national leaders have a well-organized secret program for some "dark horse," the 79 Pennsylvania delegates should climb on the Hoover bandwagon at the start and get the credit for nominating the Secretary of Commerce.

There is no doubt that one favorable definite word from Secretary Mellon would be sufficient to assure Hoover's nomination on the first or second ballot. That word was not forthcoming early today. Sitting in the private car that temporary has become the national political headquarters, Secretary Mellon absolutely declined to break his silence. He again reiterated his intention of keeping silent until the delegation holds its caucus in Kansas City Tuesday morning.

REED LEANS TO HOOVER

Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh, was not so reticent.

"It looks like Hoover, if the convention is given definite information that President Coolidge will not accept the nomination. I look for the nomination of Mr. Hoover on the first or second ballot, if such information reaches the convention," he said. "On the other hand if it becomes known that Mr. Coolidge will accept the nomination I believe he would have everybody's support, including that of Secretary Hoover. I am not authorized to speak for Secretary Mellon or Secretary Hoover. I believe, however, President Coolidge is Mr. Mellon's first choice and Mr. Hoover his second. I believe that is the attitude of the Pennsylvania delegation."

Former Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown, probably closer to

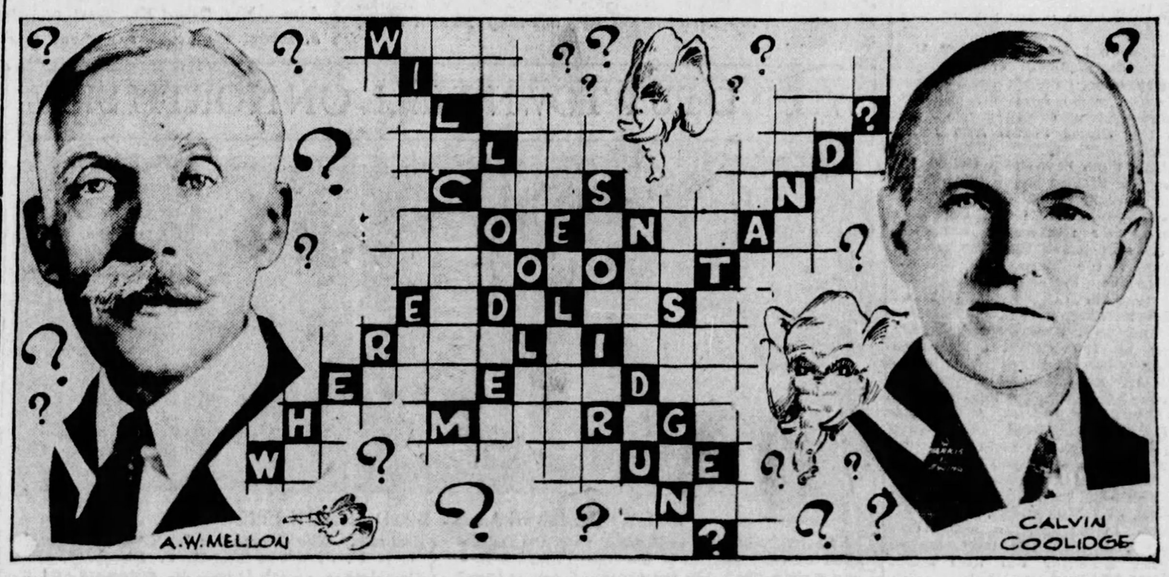
Guilty His Plea in Slaying

A general plea of guilty to an indictment charging murder was entered today by Herman Huber, 31, in Criminal Court. Huber was arraigned for the killing of his common-law wife, Nellis Turner Mahler, aged 38, in their home, 420 South Main street, West End, November 28, last.

City detectives and policemen testified Huber admitted the shooting after a quarrel over attentions of other men, and also attempted suicide. The defense claimed the woman shot Huber, entering the room with a revolver and firing the shot over some apparent trifle, and that Huber was unaware of his actions after being shot.

Mario Mulas, of tSowe township, was placed on trial charged with murder before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff of Armstrong county. He is accused of shooting Ramondo Carboni, 30, a painter of 31 Fleming avenue, Stowe township, January 8. Most of the day was devoted to selection of a jury.

THE BIGGEST CROSS WORD PUZZLE



MELLON KEY TO G. O. P. CHOICE FOR NOMINEE

KANSAS CITY, June 11.—(AP.)—For the Republican National Convention to force the nomination of President Coolidge "would be highly dangerous," Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, today told his state delegation at his first conference with them.

By RUTH HANNA M'CORMICK,
(Copyright, 1928, by Chicago Herald and Examiner.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—The Republican party of 1928, about to write history of tremendous convention sequence to this nation, is what?

One man!
Who?
"Uncle Andy" Mellon!

After all our fuss and feathers, our best efforts in a thousand directions across the whole country, we approach the zero hour in this critical moment for the party, breathlessly awaiting one word from this great man.

What Mr. Mellon will say, what nods he will make, what indications he will suggest or implications that may be implied from his first deliberate statement, no one in Kansas City today, probably, has an inkling.

NO FINALITY.

There is speculation aplenty, but no finality.

In all my limited experience as a humble participant in Republican party affairs, I have never known the time when such responsibility rested on the shoulders of a single man.

That is the psychology of this fine gathering of men and women from the 48 states of the Union 24 hours before the gavel falls in the convention hall.

While there is often a slip between the cup and the lip, as the ancient epigramatist put it, the CHICAGO, June 11.—Joe Burman, former featherweight boxer, was taken to a hospital today suffering from a bullet wound in the left thigh.

Burman told police he was shot while in the oriental room of the Davis Hotel, in the heart of the "Gold Coast" district. James Davis, owner of the hotel, denied Burman's story, saying no trouble had occurred there.

Dr. Louis Gries, house physician, is said to have taken Burman to the hospital. The physician and Davis were to be questioned further, police announced.

TWO FALL TO DEATHS

Falling four stories from the Citizens' Bank Building, Diamond and Wood streets, this morning, John McClelland, 29, 215 East Lacock street, was killed. He was cleaning windows in the offices of the E. H. Jennings Company, and fell when the rope on which he was supported parted.

Thomas Benson, 23, of 712 Anaheim street, dropped to his death from the fourth floor of a new building at Penn and Braddock avenues today. Employed as a structural steel worker, Benson accidentally fell while at work. He died an hour later in Columbia Hospital from a fractured skull.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—The Pirates arrived in this city this morning ready to tie into the local Phillies, cellar champs of the National League, in the first of a three-game series today.

After winning three out of four from the Boston Braves, climaxing their stay in the Hub city with a double triumph over the Bostonians Saturday afternoon, the Bucos are in fine spirits, and hope to sweep the series with the lowly but ever dangerous Phils this week.

Paul Waner is ready to play first base in the absence of the injured Pete Scott. Carmen Hill will likely get the call to duty on the mound. He probably will be opposed by Sweetland, a left hander of the Phils. In this event, Charley Hargreaves will do the catching for the Bucs, otherwise Earl Smith will get the job.

AMBRIDGE MOTHER, GIRL HURT IN CRASH

ROCHESTER, Pa., June 11.—Mrs. Angus Feick, 38, of 451 Merchant street, Ambridge, and her daughter, Shirley, 6, were severely injured yesterday when their automobile crashed with a car driven by Fred M. Virden, of 39 Creighton avenue, Crafton, at a street intersection here. They were taken to Rochester General Hospital. Their car, driven by Joseph C. Feick, husband of the injured woman, was wrecked.

DREAD BOOZE RING

Developments in Pittsburgh's sweeping liquor probe, which resulted in the indictment of 167 persons on Saturday, today were:

Demand by witnesses who testified against the ring of protection by the government, fearing revenge will be taken.

Demand by the Methodist Episcopal ministers and the Allegheny County League of Women Voters of the suspension of Police Chief Peter P. Walsh and other indicted officials.

A steady stream of indicted men to the Federal Building to post bond for their appearance in court to combat the charges made against them.

About the time Supt. Walsh appeared to furnish $5,000 bond in the Federal Building, the Methodist Episcopal ministers were drafting a resolution calling on Mayor Charles H. Kline and Public Safety Director James M. Clark to suspend immediately all policemen and city officials indicted, pending their trials, which, it is urged, be held without delay.

REFUSE WALSH BOND

Walsh's bond was refused on the ground that the property named was not equal in value to twice the amount of the bond. He left the building to obtain other bail.

The resolution adopted by the Methodist ministers reads:

"In view of the fact that these indictments present the most serious charge that can be brought against a law enforcement officer, namely, co-operation with criminals in the promotion of crime," Kline and Clark are asked to act immediately.

The Allegheny County League of Women Voters also asked Mayor Kline and Council for Supt. Walsh's suspension. A letter signed by Mrs. Q. W. Hershey, chairman of the city government committee of the league, was sent to the Mayor this morning.

Fearing the vengeance of the rum ring, several of the witnesses asked protection.

MANY POST BOND

Although there was a steady stream of men filing into the office of the United States commissioner today to furnish bail, some defendants were reported in hiding and others were said to have left town. More than two score had furnished bond up to noon today.

Deputy marshals in automobiles were seeking those named in the indictment who have not yet furnished bond.

United States Attorney John D. Meyer, it is said, plans to ask for a special term of court to try the men indicted. He was not about the $25,000 GIVEN TO AUSTRALIAN PACIFIC FLIERS; SHALL THEIR AMERICAN AIDES GO UNREWARDED?

AUSTRALIA has voted $25,000 to Charles Kingsford-Smith and C. T. P. Ulm, the two pilots who took the Southern Cross from Oakland to Sydney. They deserve it. Their's was a great feat. Their skill in organization, preparation and actual flying, merits unstinted praise.

With them were two Americans. No less remarkable were their parts in the great history-making flight. One, Harry Lyon, showed navigation skill almost beyond belief. Straight as a line drawn on a map, he took the plane on its three ocean hops. The other, James Warner, kept the world breathless with his word pictures of the perils of the flight, his cheery messages of hope, his uncanny ability to keep both transmission and reception open.

The Hearst papers believe that these two Americans are worthy of reward. The Hearst papers believe that America should be as proud of Lyon and Warner as Australia is of Kingsford-Smith and Ulm. Therefore the Hearst papers urge a nationwide drive for a purse to be raised for the two men and a reception given them such as their feat merits.

The Sun Telegraph is glad to take the lead in raising the purse for Lyon and Warner. THE HEARST PAPERS WILL START OFF THE FUND WITH THE SUM OF $5,000. It should grow rapidly and mount high.

No monetary reward can pay for the risks these men took in the interests of aviation. No sum of money can pay for the added feeling of friendliness between the United States and Australia growing out of this flight. But such a sum might indicate to the navigator and radio man some slight measure of the esteem in which they are held.

Send in your share to the flight editor of the Sun Telegraph.

500,000 AT SYDNEY ACCLAIM AIRMEN

International News Service.

SYDNEY, Australia, June 11.—After a tremendous ovation tendered by a half a million Australians upon their arrival here, Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, commander of the monoplane Southern Cross on its epochal 7,800-imle flight across the Pacific, and Charles T. P. Ulm, co-pilot, today formulated plans for extending their flight around the world.

It is not known whether the American members of the crew, Harry Lyon, navigator, and James Warner, radio operator, will accompany them or take a ship back to the United States from Brisbane.

The fliers have been invited by Premier Stanley Bruce to come to Canberra as guests of the Australian government. At Canberra another tremendous reception awaits them and the Premier will present the fliers with $25,000 voted them by the Australian Parliament in acknowledgement of their accomplishment.

The fliers were greeted yesterday by the wildest acclamation ever witnessed here. They were literally mobbed by thousands who broke through police lines to catch a glimpse of them. After being officially welcomed they were taken through the main thoroughfares which was lined on all sides by admiring thousands.

The fliers completed the last 500 miles of their journey, from Brisbane to Sydney, in about five hours, making the total elapsed flying time for the 7,800 miles about 88 hours.

MELLON KEY TO NOMINEE

redhot news at this hour is the high probability that Mr. Mellon's decision will be the final judgment, for weal or woe, of the convention.

It is possible, of course, that Mr. Mellon's decision may not stampede the convention, but it is hardly likely.

And so there looms over the western slopes of the Alleghenies this great figure, a sort of Solomon who is to decide whose child this nomination is.

POWER UNQUESTIONED

Many things have conspired to put Mr. Mellon in this unique position, quite independent of any action or premeditation on his part.

In the first place, it is quite universally conceded, I believe, that he has a record as Secretary of the Treasury that perhaps has not been surpassed, if equaled, since Hamilton's time. It was fortunate for the country, in my judgment, that the times produced just such a figure to meet the unparalleled emergency that confronted the nation immediately after the World War.

He has done one of the biggest jobs in our history in more than a creditable manner. He has done it superbly, magnificently.

That may sound a little flowery, but it seems to me that it expresses the exact fact.

Particularly in the industrial East, men and women of all walks of life, perhaps the real majority, who have a real stake in things of everyday life, feel a deep sense of gratitude.

Either by accident or design he finds himself in the very vortex of this party struggle. He is coming here, not as a single delegate, but as the beloved "Uncle Andy" of the Alleghenies.

It is too much to expect of human nature that the delegates from Pennsylvania, and possibly many from New York and other Eastern states, would refuse to abide by his judgment.

That being true, what are the potentialities, in truth, the realities of this on-the-surface hectic hour?

TWO MONSTER WAVES

Upon arriving in Kansas City Mr. Mellon will be confronted and for the moment swallowed up in two mammoth waves of public opinion—one the white-capped comber from the great Middle West, the rising tide of agricultural insistence on a 50-50 deal, the other, the tremendous breaker that has been gathering momentum from that party of our country and those lines of industry that do not live by bread alone.

Can those two forces, which on the surface appear almost irreconcilable in an economic sense, be composed?

LINES TIGHTLY DRAWN

Between Mr. Hoover, the admittedly leading candidate at this moment, and the so-called allies, the lines are tightly drawn. At times they appear almost impossible of converging in a harmonious climax to the colorful convention. But whether harmonious or not, the key to the whole situation at the present hour is locked in the heart and head of the patriarch of Pennsylvania.

There are sufficient unpledged delegates in the offing, who probably will be guided by Mr. Mellon's decision, to swing the tide of battle either way—either to Secretary Hoover, or to some outstanding banner-bearer who is equipped to appeal to both sides in this fundamental struggle for the 50-50 deal.

PICNIC FOR CHILDREN FREE

Most of you boys and girls read in The Sunday Sun-Telegraph about the big Jubilee that will be held on Tuesday, July 3, at the National Amusement Park, Aspinwall, where everything will be free and to which the little folk in the families of Sun-Tele readers will be invited.

This is more about the big time you are going to have—more about the plans The Sun-Tele is making for your celebration of the beginning of vacation.

In the first place every boy and girl will get a great, long ticket filled with coupons. It is printed in orange color and looks like a railroad ticket to California, except that the coupons instead of being good only for rides in railroad cars, are to be used on the merry-go-round, the gleeboat, the Ferris wheel, the airplane swings and the other attractions in the wonderful new park.

And one of the coupons will entitle you to a French Vanilla bar of delicious icecream put up by the Reinhold Ice and Ice Cream Company of Oakmont. The ticket will be good all day and the visitors may come early and enjoy the beautiful countryside, as well as indulge in games with the thousands and thousands of other boys and girls who will be there.

Every boy and every girl in the Sun-Tele family will be invited.

How do you get tickets?

That is a timely question and one which the management of The Sun-Tele will answer in detail in a very few days. But this much can be told now. All the little folk anywhere The Sun-Tele is read can get an invitation for the asking, and with the invitation goes one of those long tickets admitting the holders to all the shows and amusements in the big park. Fifty thousand boys and girls can be provided for and The Sun-Tele will bear all the expense. It's to be the biggest boy and girl picnic ever held in Pittsburgh.

Watch The Sun-Tele tomorrow for more about the Jubilee, and remember the date—Tuesday, July 3.

Vare than any one man, when told of that statement said

"Why should there be any fooling around about President Coolidge? He has said he is not a candidate and are we to regard the President as insincere?"

Albert M. Greenfield, Philadelphia real estate man and reputed "angel" of the Vare senatorial campaign, agreed with Brown.

MELLON SILENT

"I cannot answer that" was Secretary Mellon's stock answer to such questions as "Have you any information that President Coolidge will accept the nomination?" And "Are you hopeful that he will be nominated?" And "Do you look for Charles E. Hughes to loom as a factor for the nomination?"

When asked the probable attitude of Pennsylvania on the first ballot, the Secretary said the delegation would caucus Tuesday to decide that, adding "even if I could answer that question, it would not be appropriate for me to do so before that time."

He said he still stands by his Philadelphia statement in which he said Hoover, of all in the field, was closest to the high standards set for the presidency.

"The situation has not changed since I made that statement," he said.

FISHER SPIKES RUMOR

Gov. John S. Fisher, traveling with Secretary Mellon, effectively squelched reports that his name is being considered for vice president.

"You can score that report zero," he said.

One rumor on the train is that Secretary Mellon is ready to declare for Hoover if he can slate Senator Curtis of Kansas for vice president. That is just one of many rumors.

The prevailing opinion is that Secretary Mellon has made an agreement with Charles E. Hilles, who controls about 60 New York votes, to maintain silence until they confer in Kansas City.

In the car with Mellon and Fisher are W. L. Mellon and R. B. Mellon. Behind this train are two other sections, one from Pittsburgh on which Senator M. G. Leslie, Mayor Charles H. Kline and others are traveling, and one from Philadelphia. Grundy and Vare are on the second one.

TREPASSEY, N. F., June 11.—After more than a week's delay, Miss Amelia Earhart, Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon were today still awaiting favorable weather for the start of their projected flight to England in the tri-motored Fokker monoplane Friendship.

Conditions were slightly improved today, with visibility better over the Atlantic and the winds more favorable. However, fog still hovered over the harbor here. The fliers may start today, they announced, if the fog lifts.

BAD WEATHER FOR MABEL

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., June 11.—(INS.)—After surveying weather conditions at dawn today, Charles A. Levine, sponsor of Miss Mabel Boll's proposed trans-Atlantic flight in Levine's monoplane Columbia, announced that the flight would not start today. All preparations had been made for a hop-off between 5 and 6 o'clock this morning, but unfavorable weather reports caused the "Queen of Diamonds" and her pilots, Oliver Le Boutillier and Capt. Arthur Argles, to change their plans.

The flight will not start until tomorrow at the earliest, Levine announced. The fliers may head directly for Europe instead of first flying to Old Orchard, Me., as had been planned originally. The two pilots are in favor of a direct flight if the runway at Roosevelt Field is dry enough to permit the Columbia to take off with a full load of gasoline.

airship were seriously injured when the ship's gondola was hurled to the ice in a storm, relief workers attempted to accelerate their rescue plans today.

The gondola was detached from the airship during a terrific storm and Nobile and seven of the crew hurtled to the ice inside it. The remainder of the crew drifted 30 kilometers to the eastward with the dirigible before it came to the ground.

In this way, the crew of the Italia became separated into two parts on the ice floes of the Arctic, advices from King's Bay, Spitzbergen, received by the Exchange Telegraph Company in Rome and relayed here, stated.

WIND BREAKING ICE

The ice ship Hobby has advised that a strong wind is now breaking up the ice and that it will soon be possible for the ship to proceed farther northward to search for the Italia's crew.

Both the Bobby and the steamer Braganza will attempt to press onward to Cape North as soon as possible. Capt. Riiser-Larsen, the Norwegian aviator, has reched the Hobby in his plane, the Gull.

Larsen and Lieut. Holm will attempt to locate the Italia's castaways from the air and drop food and other supplies down to them. Holm made one attempt to scour the northern regions, but was compelled by inclement weather to make a landing on the ice of Mossel Bay.

Meanwhile the Italia continues to keep in constant touch by radio with the Citta di Milano at King's Bay. The two parts of the crew are on an ice-pack 80.20 degrees, north, latitude; and 28.4, east, longitude. They are unable to reach each other because of open water leads in the ice.

The members of the Italia's crew have sufficient food to last them until the middle of next month, and those who were not injured are in excellent health and spirits, the Citti di Milano was informed.

Three members of the crew, better equipped than the others to combat Arctic conditions because of Alpine experience, are reported to be proceeding southward ahead of the others and may be able to reach the rescuers and lead them back to the Italia.

WAIT MORE SIGNALS

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, June 11.—(AP.)—Gen. Umberto Nobile and the members of the crew of the Italia, marooned on the Arctic ice floes, today were believed to be conserving the last link that bound them to civilization—their radio.

On the base ship Citta di Milano, radio operators stuck to their posts day and night straining to catch the signals from the explorers. At 10 o'clock last night the Italia's situation was critical.

radio was growing weaker. Only short reports were being received by the base ship. It was thought that the marooned men were hoarding the energy of the accumulator. It was believed that this would be sufficient for only a few days more.

Since Friday the airship's crew has drifted four minutes from 24 degrees east longitude to 24 degrees 4 minutes, a distance of 2,000 meters (2,187 yards).

One party on the ice floes has the radio equipment. The other has no means of communication with the base ship. It was feared that their

Rogers Bumps Candidates

OLDEST, 52

Mrs. Jean Farina and her son, Charles, have the distinction of being the first mother and son team to enter a marathon in Pittsburgh. They've been in training and are confident they'll win. John O'Connell, 52, is the oldest marathoner to enter a contest in this city.

JOLT GIVES THEM IDEA TO STOP HOOVER

By WILL ROGERS.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—Flew in here yesterday from Chicago and made a forced landing on the backs of 21 candidates, who were laying out in the grass on their stomach trying to figure out some way to stop Hoover.

The propeller struck one in the head and that gave him an original idea. He says:

"Boys, let's be honest with ourselves."

Well, that was a laugh right there.

"Let's don't kid ourselves; there just don't seem to be any prominent demand for any of us to be president, so what can we do."

Well, just then the iron tail piece on the plane skidded off another so-called favorite son's head and set him thinking seriously.

HERE'S BIG IDEA

"Well, if nobody wants us, what do you say we all get together and stop the fellow that the majority want?"

"That's a great idea," says all the rest, in what sounded like unison."

"What will we call our party?"

"Let's call it the dog in the manger party."

"That's great. Now, members, can we trust each other?"

"We can till this candidate is stopped, and then it's every fellow for himself. Now that's understood, we all sign an agreement that we won't start killing each other off till after we have all killed the first fellow off. Is that understood? We are gentlemen till our main mission is performed and then we revert back to type. Is that plain to all of you?"

"It is."

"All right, members, lets get to the manger, and guard it with your lives."

"What's our slogan?"

"Keep the party in the hands of politicians."

"What's our yell?"

"Three long growls."

So that is the party that was formed by my pilot foolishly landing on them. I only claim one distinction in arriving at this convention; I am the only one who has arrived that wasn't bringing a letter from Coolidge.

Mellon is on a special train with the Pennsylvania delegation. I am just thinking what would be the consequences if something happened to Mellon himself on the way out. They wouldn't know any more who they were to vote for. I even doubt if he has told them where the convention was being held, and they may not even get there.

RELIEF, THERE AIN'T ANY

Three hundred thousand farmers were supposed to come to the convention to show that they need relief, but the roads are so bad out here that they couldn't make it. If the farmers got here, they wouldn't know who to ask for relief. Everybody here is looking for personal relief. They haven't got any time to monkey with somebody else's troubles.

Don't any of you feel downhearted because you are not here. You are not missing a thing. I have been here before and heard Jim Reed make one speech and cause more excitement in the town than all these Republicans combined. The convention opens Tuesday and closes when Coolidge makes up his mind. Of all the tips you get around here, everybody has a different one. The bellboys where the delegates are staying are the only ones that haven't got a tip since the thing started.

Gen. Pershing is the latest tip that's going the rounds. Well, we had one elected on "He kept us out of war," why not elect one on "He got us out of war?"

Now here is something that I have never tipped you all off to before, and that is who I am for myself. Well, here it is out for the first time. I am for Mrs. Coolidge. I want her to run on a vindication platform. And if the Republican party paid its just debts, she would be nominated.

BATTLE RAGES WHEN PEKIN IS OCCUPIED

PEKIN, June 11.—(AP.)—With Pekin all but isolated, refugees were thronging the legation area today. A note of the foreign diplomats to the Nationalists charging bad faith in carrying out an agreement for the peaceful occupation was unanswered.

Troops of one of the military allies of the Nationalist cause were in the city, but their commander-in-chief, Gov. Yen Hsi-Shan, of Shansi, had decided it was not prudent to come to Pekin at present. There were indications that another military ally of the Nationalists, Feng Yu-Hsiang, would himself take over control. Pekin today was practically surrounded by his troops. They outnumbered the Shansi forces two to one.

FIGHTING NEAR TIENTSIN

Fighting was in progress to the north of Tientsin and it was thought probable that Feng would not arrive in Pekin until he had occupied Tientsin.

Bandit troops were robbing all travelers, even those bearing diplomatic credentials, and highways from the city were no longer safe for automobile travel. Telegraphic communication was severed. Railroad trains were tied up in the city, adding to the number of refugees. Among them was the second wife of the Emperor Kwang Hsu with her retinue.

FEAR FOR MUKDEN TROOPS

Rumors were rife concerning the fate of the forty-seventh Mukdenite brigade which had been policing the city until Nationalist troops arrived. The foreign diplomats claimed that their safe evacuation had been agreed to by the Nationalist government and that this agreement had been violated. Gen. Pao Yu-Lin, their commander, took refuge in the legation quarter after it was reported that a plot to kidnap him was afoot. One report said that two of his colonels had died before a firing squad.

Convention Day by Day

By

O. O. M'INTYRE

KANSAS CITY, June 11.—Kansas City is known, high, wide and handsome, as a "packing center." It lives up to the tradition with a bang. Anybody who arrives late had better be up in flagpole sitting. There are many places where the poets sing the "West Begins," but this is my favorite—with love and kisses.

The topography of Kansas City suggests a roller-coaster at Coney Island. Given a feather for your hat, a second-hand yodel and an Alpenstock, one could do tra-la-la Swiss Gavott from peak to peak.

A well meaning New York friend suggested, now that I have had my fourth adenoid operation and am in fairly good health, it might be well if I cared to continue healthy, to leave my spats at home.

They do not know I am practically a Kansas City berry. I was born 30 miles, and with mule kicks, from here, and any number of citizens, well five any way, in my town, will remember me as the lad with buck teeth and translucent ears who bicycled down Main street with my arms folded.

New York does not understand that my love for the open spaces is due to Middlwest nativity. They imagine, with their insular ignorance, it is because I am an Elk. Kansas City, up until the time I was jerked from the south end of a north-bound plow, was always the "Big City" to me. Today it is grander than ever.

You would scarcely know the old place. Bunting, flags, arches, electric banners, bands, parades, badges and fun no end. Bigger and better than Broadway, it is like living across from Madison Square Garden when the circus is in town. We are quartered at the Muehlbach—that name somehow suggests a summer garden, a cool glass of lager and a band playing something by Strauss. Will Rogers is on one side of me and Sam Blythe on the other—a rose garden between, but never mind. Snooping around our cages to jab us with a prod-iron and toss in a piece of raw meat from time to time is Charlie Driscoll, imported from New York to see that we write our pieces and keep away from bowling alleys and ice cream parlor hell holes.

Having arrived about an hour ago, I have seen few people and talked to none save the fellow who had evidently partaken of several scoops of kitchen gin and wandered into the room grinning: Go ahead, let's "see you write." I told him Will Rogers gave a public exhibition in two minutes down the hall and wrote him out a free ticket, and he is now pounding at Will's door. I thought I saw Nicholas Longworth in the foyer as I came in. But I wasn't sure, for whoever it was had his hat on.

Without his hat Nick is easily recognized. He suggests a Southwest quarter section of the slick ballroom floor of the Aster.

Tomorrow I am going over to Convention Hall brimming with my usual optimism and hope there will be a speaker who will say something and sit right down. Living in New York, I am used to windiness, and I came out here for a change, and to escape from an absolutely unreasonable gentleman in the talking business.

I know nothing of politics. Until I arrived in Chicago and sat in a restaurant next to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler (college boys will get together), I wasn't quite certain whether it was a Democratic or Republican convention that was being held out here. I heard him tell a friend he was going to the Republican convention. Me and Dr. Butler. So I could see my attitude is pacificatory—I knew I could drag that word in. I have been holding it in a good spot for years.

The porter on the train was friendly, perhaps because I didn't call him George and I confide that a prominent passenger from La-Porte, Ind., told him the day before it was bound to be Coolidge. If that proves to be a scoop the porter is welcome to the upper section of a pair of pajamas that I left on the train. This is the land of the old-fashioned night shirt anyway. But with an old-fashioned night shirt I hope my hotel doesn't catch fire. I'd look sweet running about town with my legs or limbs or whatever they are this season bare.

Part of this town is filled chiefly with cartoonists, newspaper correspondents, and such low people. The big bugs are to arrive today and tonight. All of which struck me as being mighty good for packing.

You see I am out here to write the human side, and little observations like that count. The gentleman who peddles my piffle wired me rather brusquely not to concern myself with vital issues at this convention, but to chronicle my observations of the ordinary and casual.

"They have—and he might have left out that crack—"trained and experienced" reporters are here, let them tell us who is going to be nominated. That is what we all want to know. But no, they back and fill and "if and where." If a wider latitude had been granted me it would be different.

I know right this moment who will be the Republican nominee, and yet I have to sit here and write about lager beer, Pullman porters, old-fashioned nightshirts and such trivials. Nobody has ever understood me. Yet I carry on always merry and bright and a big help to the folks.

Others may write of flowery forensic, the accolade of cheers, and a great party in the travail of joy and bitterness while I have to content myself with describing the picture of three apples and a banana in a fruit dish on the wall of a hotel room.

What makes it worse is that I sent gleeful messages to all my relatives hereabout saying "the big newspapers are sending me out to cover the convention." And they always suspected I was a braggart. Now they know it. So I have torn down my shibbolet, booted myself out of journalism and am just staying on here because I did not buy a return ticket.

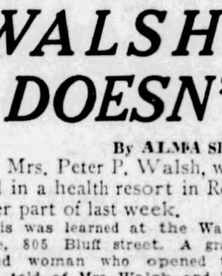
EMPIRE PURCHASES TIDIOUTE REFINERY

OIL CITY, Pa., June 11.—Owners of the Empire Oil Works, Inc., of this city, announced today that they had purchased a controlling interest in the Tidioutte Refining Company at Tidioute. A. L. Confer, of Oil City, has been elected president of the Tidioute concern, which will be operated separately from the Empire works. A new management also will be installed at Tidioute.

Pittsburgh As Others See Us

"Pittsburgh has always been alive intellectually."

JANE COWL.



JANE COWL.

JANE COWL, actress, was born in Boston, Mass., December 14, 1890; educated in Columbia University. Married A. E. Klauber, of New York, in 1908. After playing small parts in David Belasco's company at the Republic Theater, she made her debut in 1909. Her most popular role is "Juliet," in which she scored the longest consecutive run of a Shakesperean play in history. Lives in New York City.

As far as my observation goes, Pittsburgh has always been alive intellectually. I have found your audiences sensitive and appreciative of the best. The fact that Pittsburgh, in spite of its intense commercial activity, has supported and encouraged great painting exhibitions and a fine, intelligent theater foundation is evidence of a healthy cultural state.

It is becoming more and more necessary, however, for the theater to be recognized as an important factor in the communal life. Something in the way of financial support, other than that of haphazard public patronage, must be given to it. * * *

WALSH'S WIFE DOESN'T KNOW

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

Mrs. Peter P. Walsh, wife of the superintendent of police, is ill in a health resort in Rome, Ind. She left Pittsburgh the latter part of last week.

This was learned at the Walsh home, 805 Bluff street. A gray-haired woman who opened the door, told of Mrs. Walsh and her illness.

"She is that nervous—and sick," she shook her head sympathetically. "They say she'll have to have an operation. She has had 12 children—and has been worried and delicate for a long time."

Quickly the woman, who thought she was talking to a personal friend of Mrs. Walsh, added:

"She knows nothing about this rum probe business though! Things like that are not brought home and discussed."

Asked when Mrs. Walsh expected to return to the city, the informant said:

"At least two or three months, and it wouldn't surprise me if her stay is a great deal longer."

Supt. Walsh was among the 167 police officials, legislators, politicians, ward chairmen and others indicted Saturday in a federal grand jury probe of liquor conditions in Pittsburgh.

MILT'S GOTHAM MARATHON ON

NEW YORK, June 11.—The campaign of two Pittsburgh promoters—Milton D. Crandall and John Hernon—to overwhelm Broadway with a dance marathon was in full swing today in Madison Square Garden, the playground of Tex Rickard.

At 10 o'clock last night 133 couples took the floor in what Mr. Crandall, with characteristic modesty, described as the international dance marathon — the world's greatest show. Among the favorites were two Pittsburgh teams, Eddie Leonard and Marianne Jacque, who danced 132 hours in Pittsburgh, and Bill Busch and Mary Pomito.

There were only a few paying spectators in the Garden when the dance started, but smiles were spread from ear to ear on the cherubic countenances of Rickard, Hernon and Crandall as the natives lined up later at the boxoffice.

PLAN FLAG DAY PROGRAM

Exercises in commemoration of the one hundred and fifty-first anniversary of the adoption of the American flag will be held by the Pennsylvania Society, Sons of the American Revolution, at Flagstaff Hill, Schenley Park, the morning of June 14. The program includes the raising of the flag, accompanied by the sounding of the reveille and a military salute, playing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" and an address by Congressman Harry A. Estep. J. L. Walker, president of the society, has appointed Postmaster G. W. Gosser chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

WOMEN ASK BOND FACTS

ISSUE'S FRIENDS ANSWER QUIZ TOMORROW

As chairman of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith has addressed to the People's Bond Issue Association of Allegheny County a list of questions dealing with the county's financial status and the advisibility of floating, at this time, the propsed $43,680,000 bond issue for public improvements.

The questions are submitted in the form of a letter to James C. Chaplin, president of the Bond Issue Association, and will be answered tomorrow at a meeting in the William Penn Hotel, at which the sponsors of the bond issue will discuss the proposal with representatives of women's organizations.

Mrs. Smith's letter to Mr. Chaplin:

Availing myself of your courteous assurance that any inquiries one cared to submit regarding the proposed county bond issue, would be answered at the meeting of the representatives of women's organizations for discussion of the subject at the William Penn Hotel, June 12, I am forwarding to you certain questions which occur to me as being pertinent.

In doing so, I desire to assure you that it is not in any captious spirit, but with a sincere desire to bring out information that the voters should have before passing upon an issue so far-reaching in its effects as the one now facing them.

IS AUDIT REAL?

These, then, are some of the questions, which I feel should be answered in the interest of intelligent voting:

1 In the yellow folder, which I suppose was printed by the People's Bond Issue Association, you state under heading of "Borrowing power Is Large," "An impartial audit of Allegheny County finances as made for the controller by Ernst & Ernst, accountants and auditors of nation-wide repute, shows the following to be the county's financial condition." Is this really an "impartial audit" of the county's books by Ernst & Ernst, certified public accountants, as stated in the folder, or a mere compilation by them if figures submitted by county officials and uncertified by them?

2 Can your committee or the county controller inform us as to when we may expect the county controller's 1927 report of the financial affairs of the county, due under the law in the prothonotary's office January 31, 1928, but which is being withheld under an indefinite perod of grace granted by the court?

3 In the last 15 years, from 1914 to 1928, inclusive, what has been the amount of increase in county assessed valuation?

4 What has been the increase in county millage (exclusive of poor tax) during the same period?

5 (a) What has been the increase of revenue from this increased millage between 1914 and 1928? (b) What is the percentage of such increase?

6 What will be the total interest charges and state tax charges incurred by the County of Allegheny for the $29,207,000 30-year bond issue authorized by the people in 1924?

WHAT IS FINAL COST?

7 (a) At the rate of 4 per cent interest and state tax, what will the proposed issue of $43,680,000 cost the taxpayer? (b) What is the total cost, including principal, interest and state tax?

8 Basing judgment on experience with the 1924 bond issue, will the peak load of payment on this principal, with interest charges and state tax, be reached within the next 15 years? (b) If the peak is reached in 15 years, what must be refunded during that time?

9 What per cent of the total sum spent by the public in bonding operations, including interest charges and state tax, enters into actual construction for which the bonds are voted?

10 Under existing business stagnation, unemployment, and high taxes, do you consider it sound business policy to construct scenic boulevards which will cost approximately $9,000,000?

11 In view of the fact that the maximum life of a hard-surfaced road is admittedly less than 15 years, why is the public asked to approve 30-year bonds in the sum of $17,280,000 for such work, at a cost of $1,682.00 per $1,000 of bonds?

12 Why are the people now asked to approve bonds for park purposes, when they were not consulted before the obligation was incurred, as to whether they desired the land to be purchased for parks?

13 Is part of this park money to be used to support the agreement made by the county commissioners in ratification of the act of one of the commissioners authorizing an agent to purchase the land and giving his personal notes to the bank to make temporary payment thereof?

14 In view of the fact that request is now made for $2,550,000 for a county office building, may I ask if it is not a fact that the commissioners knew in 1924, when they asked for only $1,100,000 for such purposes, that the building and ground was to cost $3,650,000?

TOWN HALL UPKEEP

15 Why should the county be called upon to finance a Town Hall with its costly upkeep, when we already have a Soldiers' Memorial Hall with an average annual expense of $40,000 and an average revenue of only $9,000?

16 (a) If it costs the county in running maintenance charges and janitorial service $507,000 for upkeep of the four following buildings—County Court House, one half of the City-County building, Morgue and Old City Hall—what will it cost for upkeep of a $6,000,000 Town Hall? (b) What approximate revenue does your committee estimate will be received for use of the Town Hall, basing these estimates on receipts in other cities?

17 Does your committee estimate that there will be sufficient revenue to meet all interest and sinking fund charges, plus all maintenance charges, or will there be a large deficit to be paid every year from taxes of the people?

18 What was the annual salary and wage payroll in the county Department of Public Works when the people approved the bond issue of 1924?

19 What was the annual salary and wage payroll in the same department in 1926 and 1927?

20 (a) How much of the county commissioners' bonding power has been used in the last four years? (b) Of the $14,000,00 alleged to be still remaining within the bonding power of the board of commissioners, what portion will be used during the present administration?

21 Does your committee feel that one month's notice of these items give ample time for intelligent discussion?

22 Does your committee feel that the county commissioners are justified in imposing an expense of $110,000 for special bond elections, when these items might have been considered either at the spring primary or the fall election?

In conclusion, may I not suggest that if accurate answers to these questions are placed in the hands of voters along with matter being sent out by your committee, they will be much better prepared to say whether they believe it is wise at this time to add $43,680,000 to the bonded indebtedness of the county.

BUGS BAER Says

STATEMENTS of leading candidates are like news reels, amusing as well as educational.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Fifteen candidates have spent $731,087 on campaigns in their efforts to remove that No Parking sign from the big veto chair.

Hoover leads prodigal native sons with $380,82 2 . 1 1. Can't imagine what that extra 11 cents are for, as it is too early for the Boy Scouts' lollypop season.

Gov. Smith tore the lining right out of $127,471.04. If that four cents is for return postage on the money then the four cents are wasted.

We wouldn't know all this if the Senate hadn't insisted on pouring trouble on the oiled waters.

The committee on the investigation of dead issues came to life and proceeded on the theory that an adding machine was a pulmotor.

Now we know who spent it. But who got it?

Even if that money was tossed off in bales, it ain't hay.

Every four years somebody sells each one of the 48 states to the toughest bidder.

We don't know who owns Wisconsin and Rhode Island, nor who has the lease on Pennsylvania, but it seems that every state is all bundled up and ready to be delivered.

No wonder we have the G. O. P. confused with the C. O. D.

All we can say is that a good, incorruptible vote seems to be worth more now than in 1886.

NEWS GATHERING FILM AT GRAND

The first appearance of "The Making of a Newspaper" to the Pittsburgh public began today when the Grand Theater, opening its program for the week, showed the newspaper picture along with "Hangman's House," the feature, an Our Gang Comedy and a stage show with Chita and Her Flaming Youths.

The newspaper film, shot and produced by the International Newsreel, portrays the most interesting processes in the pursuit, corraling and exposition of news. Built on incidents that will be easily identified by the public as "big stories,' its two reels are charged with interest. It explains the more important factors in the productions of the Hearst dailies, and presents newspaper making in a most interesting way.

Allied on the program, "Hangman's House," is a romance of Ireland from the famous novel by Donn Byrne. The comedy features the Hal Roach youngsters at their best, while the stage show is based on dancing, melody and good humor. The news picture will be a part of the program all week.

THE CONSTANT FLAME

A Fair Maid Meets Love In Strange Surroundings

by WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Emily Breaks With King Because He Is Not Of Her Class

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Emily Day and Kitten are daughters of a worker in the Rossiter factory. Both are prevented by poverty from mingling with the socially elect of the little town. Emily has made an ideal of Kent Rossiter. Marty Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," is devoted to her. Mrs. Frances Haiden, a wealthy interior decorator, takes an interest in her and tells her the only aristocracy is that of work. She gets a job with Mrs. Haiden. Her father dies and Rossiter offers help which her mother declines. Avis Rossiter's father threatens to disinherit her unless she changes her ways. Avis proposes to Marty and is refused. Kittens meets a wealthy boy and wants a new dress.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"BECAUSE," he answered calmly, "I'm going to marry you some day!"

She jumped up and faced him, everything—even her love for Agnes—forgotten. "You! You come here and say this? You dare? Oh, go now! I never want to see you again. You understand? I never want to see you again!"

He got up in a leisurely manner, passed her and looked around with a smile. "Yes, you do, Em. I'll be back.

"And don't forget what I said. I'm going to marry you some day!"

CHAPTER XVIII.

EMILY went into the house and found Agnes in the shadow of the hallway. She had heard; even now she peered into her daughter's face with a stricken look.

"You sent him away, Emmy? You told Marty to go away?"

"He—oh, he's terrible, Muz. Telling me what I must do—can't stand that—"

"He's a fine lad, baby, and I've no doubt knows what's best. I mind the time your father did the same. Two that's to be married—ah, it would break my heart—"

She put up her hand with the gesture Emily dreaded, brushed it across her eyes. Pathetic, so helpless—its very helplessness bound the girl.

No longer free to walk lightly, go swinging out to meet some vivid destiny. Caught by this unreasoning thing, a gesture of a tired old hand with knotted ropes at the back.

Well, see it through. Others did things which twisted their hearts. Without a whimper, the way of the thoroughbred. She could do that much even though she was only Emily Day.

"It's all right dear," she said, rather dully. "He'll come back. Didn't you and father do that sometimes? Have little quarrels? Means nothing—"

Agnes brightened at once. "It's a quarrel then, Emmy? Only your happiness I want, baby. I'll be leaving you one of these days—"

"Muz darling, please!"

"Yes. I'm getting along and there isn't a great deal in life. If I could see you safe with one that would cherish you! You'll listen to him, dear?"

"Of course I will! He's been kind to us, hasn't he? Yes, of course I want to listen!"

The fine glow of sacrifice had faded the next day, but Emily clung to the letter of her promise. Marty said he was going to marry her some time. All right, she would do this. Walk to the altar with him, promise to love and honor till death parted them.

Love and honor—promise that A sacred thing it should be, made with the heart, not just the lips. Do it because her mother wished it and because he came to her arrogantly and said, "Some day I'm going to marry you!" Would that be right

She could not see that it would. She had to be honest with herself. Her thought cast about in a panic, darting this way and that and finally was driven back upon itself. Changes might come about—anything happen.

Wait for fate to step in and rescue her; that was the only way.

Nevertheless when Kingdon Coles telephoned her at the shop she refused to see him.

He invited her for a drive and dinner at one of the inns up the Hudson, but she felt she shouldn't accept.

"I'm sorry, King. We're awfully busy right now."

"Let me come and help you. I'm a great little old decorator."

"Oh, no. Something I have to do tonight, really—"

He told her good-bye, offended, and she turned to see Frances Haiden watching. She might twist facts talking over the telephone to Kingdon Coles, but she would have to tell Frances the truth. The sharp eyes demanded it.

"Mother thinks I ought to keep to my own," she began miserably. "King isn't my class. I'd better not see him any more."

"What is your class, my dear?"

"Well, I suppose Marty Nolan—"

"The red-haired boy with the bad manners? You think he's like you? Why don't you forget what you call 'class,' Emily?

"Your constant fear of it—doesn't it strike you that's only inverted snobbery?

"Who is it makes class? Certainly not those you dignify by that name. From what I've been able to observe they go their ways not bothering much about the rest of the world. It's those who consider themselves underneath, the ones you'd call the 'mass' who draw fine social lines.

"They seem to believe the ones on top are determined to push down and so they set about pushing up. The result is the whole arrangement distorted.

"Each has part of the world's work to do. Why can't they go along side by side and forget everything excepting that they're all human beings?"

"But some say—"

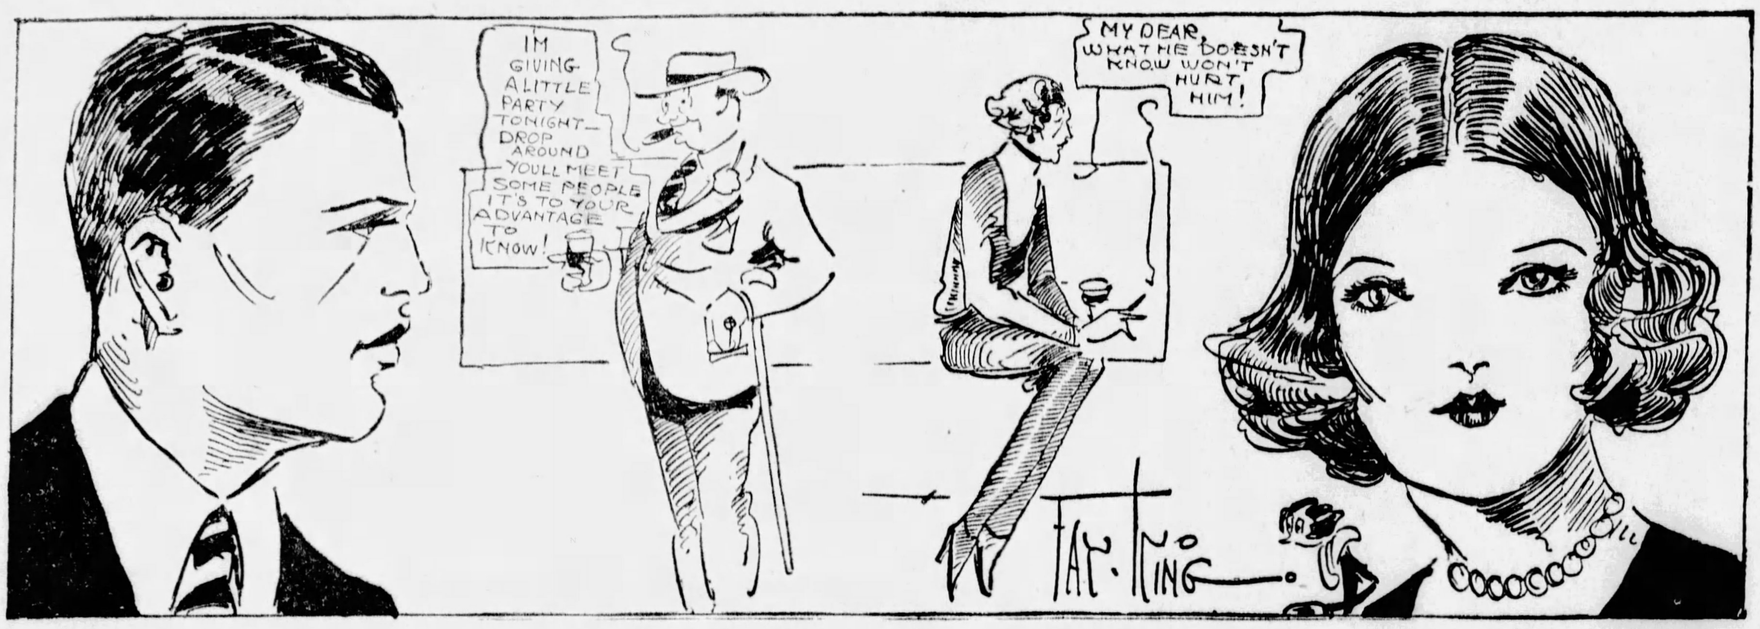
"Who are 'some,' Emily? You have a good brain; why not think for yourself? There is no one, no matter what the relationship may be, with a right to dictate your thought. To do this is to steal individuality. That is a grave error."

Frances was thinking, Emily suspected, of Muz. Begging her to be herself. Yet there were things you couldn't hold out against—an old hand going up in a helpless way. She thought of Marty and the promise she had made.

As if in answer to that she saw him going slowly by the window, Anne Morrow was with him, smiling up at him. All her anger of the night before came searing back.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

Fay King Blames the Selfish for Marital Woes



I'M GIVING A LITTLE PARTY TONIGHT— DROP AROUND YOU'LL MEET SOME PEOPLE IT'S TO YOUR ADVANTAGE TO KNOW!
MY DEAR, WHAT HE DOESN'T KNOW WON'T HURT HIM!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

IT IS TOO bad, but, alas, too true, that a lot of the troubles caused between young couples is brought about by older persons, who should know better!

How many ambitious young husbands have gone to wild parties given by a dissipated successful man, because they really thought it would be to their advantage in business!

How many selfish, frivolous hostesses invite a young husband without inviting his wife!

How many married women who haven't a chick nor a child to care for plant the first thought of domestic drudgery into a young wife's head!

Or, inviting a young wife to tea, they encourage a flirtation with another man and infer only prudes and provincially minded women are in love with their own husbands!

How many older, childless, couples invite a young husband to have good times with them and make him feel that since his wife has the care of a child he is neglected!

I sometimes am almost inclined to think that some of these persons delight in destroying happiness and faith.

No young couple will ever gain anything to their advantage from those who disregard the happiness of the young couple.

CITY HALL FOR HOOVER, 3 TO 2

Hoover, 75.
Smith, 50.

Hoover was a 3-to-2 favorite over Simth in a straw vote taken by The Sun-Telegraph in the City-County Building and the Court House, 75 ballots being cast for the Republican and 50 for the Democratic presidential candidate. One citizen said he would vote for Coolidge, while another wrote in the name of Dawes.

The count in The Sun-Telegraph's presidential poll now stands as follows:

	Hoover.	Smith.
Oliver Building.....	367	167
Westinghouse Plant...	302	300
Ohio Street.....	131	202
Imperial	55	52
City-County Bldg.....	75	50
Total	930	771
Mail Vote.....	361	1807
Grand Total.....	1291	2578

The vote in the Court House and City-County Building represents the preference of county officials, court officers, jurors and attorneys.

Of those polled, 90 voted for Coolidge four years ago and five for Davis. Of all those personally canvassed thus far 1,020 were for Coolidge and 115 for Davis. The grand total shows 2,226 were for Coolidge and 345 for Davis at the last election.

Women's Ensemble Suits for Summer Travel

Now $75.00

This is a group of handsome ensembles, all of which have been higher priced.

They have long coats of lightweight cloths or rich silk crepes, chiefly in navy or black; and one and two-piece frocks of silk crepe, in solid colors or in prints of the uncommon kind.

Such suits are correct as "landing" costumes for women traveling in Europe, who will also find them practical for train and town wear on the continent.

"A Knitted Dress Is Wonderful for Traveling"

—so a customer told us, who wore a Horne "Tee and Turf" knitted frock on a jaunt through the Rocky Mountain district last summer. "Because it never wrinkled, it was always ready to put on, and it did not cling nor stretch as I had always feared a knitted dress would do. It was not too warm when driving in the sun, because it is porous, and yet it gave the gratifying warmth of a sweater when we would dip into the deep shade. I called it my 'best friend' on this trip.

The "Tee and Turf," in Pittsburgh only at Horne's, one and two-piece models for women and misses, $29.50.

The SERVICE CENTER for TRAVELERS and VACATIONISTS

To make every trip and sojourn a success—that is the idea on which Horne's has established itself as a Great Service Center for those who travel and who take a holiday.

Where to go, how to get there, where to stop enroute, what clothes are correct to wear and to take along, what luggage is practical—all such matters are covered in this service, with which the entire store is concerned.

The "Ask Mr. Foster" Service

This department may be consulted on all questions concerning travel by boat, train and motor bus, hotels enroute, and about vacation points everywhere.

It will, without charge for its services, take over all plans for one's itinerary, making reservations, purchasing tickets, and completely relieving one of details.

The Apparel Sections

Be a woman ever so smart and clothes-wise, it is not always possible for her to be posted on just what type of clothes are appropriate for a certain point or a certain kind of travel. Our fashion sections are equipped with both general and specific information on the subject, their stocks have been purchased in accordance with this knowledge, and their salespeople trained to render intelligent and helpful service.

Included are the various Coat and Dress Sections, the Sportswear Shop, the Millinery and Shoe Salons, and the Accessory Departments.

The Luggage Department

What luggage is required depends upon where one is going. For a brief tour of Europe, bags which can be easily handled and transferred; for a long stay at a fashionable place, accommodating trunks; for motor trips, a specific type of practical luggage.

The Luggage Department (recently removed to the second floor) has had such wide experience in outfitting travelers, that it can give authentic information on all phases of the subject, and will even advise customers how to pack to best advantage when advice is desired.

Personal Service Bureau

This department will serve as a medium between those preparing for travel and salespeople throughout the store, or it will shop for or with customers.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

With the Player Folk of Footlights and Kleiglights as We Find Them in Pittsburgh and Hollywood

Al Christie Recalls "Good Old Days," When Movies Were Young And Stars Lacked Temperament

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1928, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 11.

LUNCHED with Al Christie today. Al and his brother, Charlie, have been making two-reel funsters for lo these 17 years. Al came to Hollywood some 17 years ago. Those were the days when Hollywood boulevard was a rural thoroughfare lined with orange groves. Sunset boulevard, one block south, was lined with lemon groves.

The site, corner Vine street and Sunset, which later housed the first inauspicious Famous Players' studio, was then a wheat field. Several blocks down, where the palatial Warner Studio now flings its white stone structure, was a cow pasture.

Al recollected how he spotted Betty Compson "chorus girling" in a local show and trailed in to see her after the performance. "I don't know how much salary you're getting," he told her, "but come and work for me and I'll double it."

Betty did, and thenceforth received $40 per. A few weeks later, Al voluntarily raised the ante to $50.

Seventeen years ago, the automobile wasn't. Al, who then directed his funsters, trailed to and from studio and location in what is known as a "carry all." Said carry all was a wagon that could accommodate a number of passengers and also serve as kitchen dispenser whilst locationing. Horses—good horses—then sold for $40 or $50 each.

Al recalled how William Seiter, now a popular director, hove into Los Angeles broke and spent the night in Pershing square, a park across from the now sumptuous Biltmore hostelry. Bill heard that Christie needed cowboys for a comedy. He reported for a job the next morn along with some 40 others. Bill had no more idea how to ride a horse than the average person has about flying a plane.

Nevertheless, three bucks a day sounded like a fortune in the face of nothing and starvation. It so happened that Mr. Christie had his own horse that was to be ridden by Eddie Lyon in the last part of the comedy. That animal was a hoop-de-da, but he had to be to lend the chuckle to the finale.

By mistake, Bill Seiter corraled that horse on which to ride to location up in Laure Canyon. Al had already started for the canyon with other members of the troupe in the "carry-all." The extras were riding there on horses. No sooner did Bill get atop his steed than the doggone critter commenced to beat it for nowhere. He jumped fences and ditches. Al suddenly spotted Seiter clinging to the horse's neck for dear life. The mad ride ended when the steed tried to hurdle a plow—yeah, a plow in what is now the heart of Hollywood—and cut his forelegs in doing it. Bill was thrown on his ear. Christie hurried to the horse to see if the damage meant no takes on the picture that day.

Eddie Lyons, who was to have ridden the rambunctious equine, followed. "Say, mister," he cried to Al, "you ain't goin' to see me on that horse. I don't know anything about tame ones, much less a terror like him."

All the same, Eddie rode him and collected his three bucks, as did Bill Seiter. Seiter today is preparing to go on location to San Francisco to direct Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackaill in "Wanterfront." From an extra receiving three dollars a day, he now collects a weekly salary estimated in four fat figures.

Bill's wife, Laura LaPlante, worked for Al Christie when she was 15 years old. Her first part was that of bridesmaid in a two-reel comedy.

Christie brought Dorothy Davenport, better known as Mrs. Wallace Reid, and her mother West 15 years or so ago. He paid both of them a duo salary of $65 a week!

He also brought Victoria Ford (Mrs. Tom Mix) and her mother to Hollywood at the same time, paying them a combined salary of $60 weekly!

The old days WERE the days. When the players finished work before the camera in the afternoon, they, Mr. Christie, the property men et al, went to work to build the next day's sets! A player who couldn't wield a hammer was dropped. There was no such thing as temperament. It was mostly prespiration. But it must have been grand and glorious in those pioneering days.

NOAH TO HAVE SEVERAL NOTABLES IN ARK PICTURE

Dolores Costello, with others of this group, will have a role in "Noah's Ark," which is to be filmed for presentation as a "road show."

Noah Beery, perhaps selected because of his name, will be among those involved in the events leading up to The Deluge as a film spectacle.

Louise Fazenda, too, will participate in the action which is climaxed by 40 days of the heaviest rain ever recorded by man anywhere on earth.

George O'Brien will be among those taking part in the events preceding and including the housing of the world's greatest menagerie on a boat.

Myrna Loy is another member of the cast of "Noah's Ark," in which Miss Costello is the star. It is planned to be one of the "big" pictures.

BETH SHALOM FETE TONIGHT

A lawn fete with many unique attractions will be held tomorrow and Wednesday evenings on the grounds of Beth Shalom Synagogue by the Beth Shalom Sisterhood. Home-made cakes and pastry, toys, ice cream and sandwiches will be sold. There will be dancing all evening. Mrs. A. B. Weinberger is general chairman and Mrs. L. W. Landay, vice chairman of the event.

The committee chairmen are:

Cakes, Mrs. L. Simon; pop, Mrs. H. Ellinoff; ice cream, Mrs. N. Deemer; sandwiches, Mrs. M. Fiman; candy, Mrs. P. Marcuson; sugar, Mrs. M. Kwall; flowers, Mrs. H. E. Silverblatt; fishing pond, Mrs. S. I. Lebeau; dolls and novelties, Mrs. A. Caplan; bingo, Mrs. I. Lincoff; balloons, Mrs. M. Roth; card tables and furniture, Mrs. B. Rothenberg; dancing, Mrs. J. Rosenberg; fruit, Mrs. Jack Simon; refreshment tickets, Mrs. M. L. Avner; publicity, Mrs. M. A. Rosenberg; miscellaneous arrangements, Mrs. A. Caplan; tickets and telephone, Mrs. B. Friedman; treasurer, Mrs. J. Lasday, and secretary, Mrs. P. R. Alexander.

PITT TO HAVE LOCAL GIRL

Tonight and the remainder of week the George Sharp Players in the Pitt will appear in "Saturday's Children," by Maxwell Anderson.

Tonight the Nixon Players will present in the Nixon a comedy, "Little Old New York," by Rida Johnson Young.

In the cast of "White Collars," the George Sharp Players' offering for the week of June 18 in the Pitt Theater, will be Miriam Kirkell, a Pittsburgh girl who appeared with Mr. Sharp's company in "The Family Upstairs."

Opening Monday night, June 18, the Nixon Players will present "The Gold Diggers," a comedy by Avery Hopwood.

On the Keith-Albee vaudeville program in the Davis next week will be Yates and Lawley, recording artists. The screen feature will be "Tillie's Punctured Romance."

DANCING AND SOCIAL FUNCTIONS AT PINES

In addition to dancing, which is held either indoors or outdoors, as weather permits, in the sunken garden pavilion, many social functions are held at the Pines, Perrysville highway. Mrs. P. C. Harbaugh has adopted a policy of not increasing the cover charge Saturday night, as was formerly the case.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

SLAVERY

By ANNA MAE BRADY

"WHERE are my clean collars, honey?" Tom Brilton called to his wife who was hurrying through the preparation of the beakfast.

"In the top drawer of your chiffonier, Tom," Margaret made an effort at self control and succeeded. She had wanted to add: "Just where they have been for three years." Why, she wondered, was she expected to take all the responsibility.

There was a sound of drawers being opened. "I can't find them, Margaret," her husband called.

Taking the cereal from the stove and removing the plug from the toaster, Margaret hurried up stairs to find not only the collars but the handkerchiefs and shirts on the bed where they have been unceremoniously dumped.

Not daring to trust her voice, Margaret mutely handed him a collar.

"Of all the nuts," laughed Tom putting his arm affectionately about her shoulders. "What would I do without you, dear? You are the most wonderful little wife in the world."

"You are going to miss your train if you do not hurry," Margaret told him coolly.

All this talking and banging of drawers had awakened the baby, a good two hours before his time and he would be cross for the whole day, she knew.

When at last Tom had given her an affectionate kiss and hurried away, Margaret sat down amidst the disorder and bravely resisted a desire to cry.

Everything was topsy-turvy from the kitchen to the bathroom where Tom had forgotten to pull out the plug in the tub. In the living room the pillows were wadded into unrecognizable shapes and there were cigar ashes and matches on the rug. The latter could not be blamed entirely on Tom for he had brought home two equally careless friends last night without thinking to telephone her. Of course it had to be the night when she had planned to save the cold roast which proved entirely inadequate for four people.

In all respects, save his carelessness, Tom Brilton was an admirable husband. He loved Margaret devotedly and made love as charmingly as he did in the days of their courtship, but being the only son of a devoted mother who waited on him hand and foot he took it as a matter of course that Margaret should do the same.

For some time Margaret had been near the breaking point. The care of the baby and the household duties taxed her strength severely, but more devastating than this was the mental strain under which she was laboring.

"I'm not going on this way," she told herself angrily, surveying the disordered room. "I refuse to be a slave any longer."

Turning to the telephone she called a number.

"Tell Mr. Barnard, please, that Mrs. Brilton has decided that she can do that work he 'phoned about. She will be down this afternoon."

When Tom came home that evening he found the house in the same disorder in which he had left it and a strange woman caring for the baby. While he was trying to understand the woman's explanation, Margaret came in.

"What's the matter, dear? Anything wrong?"

"Not a thing. I'm working, that's all."

"Working?"

"My old job. Mr. Barnard called up and I decided to go back."

"But—" Something in his wife's face arrested his words.

"We may as well go out for dinner," she said. "There is nothing in the house to eat."

A poorly cooked meal, which reminded both of their usual dainty dinners, only increased the mutual feeling of misunderstanding which had arisen.

"Let's go to a movie," Margaret said. "I can't bear to go back to that topsy-turvy house."

"Maybe we'd better go back and clean it up," Tom suggested meekly.

Both surprised and pleased, Margaret agreed.

To be sure, Tom wasn't much help, but his clumsy efforts brought tears to his wife's eyes. She wondered if he had glimpsed the truth and were trying to atone.

The succeeding days were tryones for Margaret. She found she did not fit into office work as well as she had before her marriage. The routine of it irked her, and she was chagrined to find her hands had in a sense lost their cunning.

For several years she had worked as Mr. Barnard's private secretary, which position carried with it not only unusual responsibility, but considerable prestige as well. She had been considered efficient and well night invaluable.

Now the position to which Mr. Barnard had called her was a subordinate one. She was out of touch with the business and what was worse she had made two costly errors in her typing. She began to wonder if she would be able to hold the position, or indeed if she cared to hold it.

The little bungalow never looked better to her than it did as she was leaving it in the early mornings unless it was when she saw its friendly light as she came home exhausted from a harassing day.

And dear old Tom never complained of this unnatural manner in which they were living. He even tried to help her in his clumsy way, but she felt, with a pang, that something of his carefree nature, his jauntiness, his boyishness, had gone.

After a few weeks at the office, Margaret realized that as a business women she was a decided failure, not that she couldn't regain her efficiency, but rather that she had no wish to do so. She longed with all her soul to be back in her home waiting on Tom—yes even slaving for him.

Tom, Jr., appeared to fare remarkably well. The nurse was extremely capable and her charge grew rounder and rosier every day.

As Margaret held out her arms for the baby one night, he unexpectedly turned from her and clung to the nurse. That was the last straw. Down she rushed into Tom's arms.

"I'm not going to the office any more," she sobbed. "I am going to stay at home and work for you and the baby. It won't be slavery now. I want to do it. I've had my lesson."

"I've had mine, too, honey," Tom said, holding her close.

Scripts Changed By Picture Directors

"No director follows the script from which he is shooting—not in the exact literal sense, at any rate." So declares Bess Meredyth, who should know. Some 700 or 800 directors have "shot" scripts from her typewriter.

Miss Meredyth has been in the industry from the days of one-reelers. She speaks deprecatingly of her share in its creation, assures one that it is all in the day's work, just a matter of course, so—what would you?

"No scripts are faithfully adhered to because the actual physical conditions—the sets, the properties, the players, and what the players do—bring the best laid plans of scenarists to naught.

"The most practical, successful working experience I know is gained by closest co-operation between writer and director," she explains.

PLAY TO BE GIVEN FOR BENEFIT OF CLUB

The presentation of "The Gold Diggers" in the Nixon Wednesday evening, June 20, will be sponsored by the Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club for the benefit of their educational and charitable fund. May Beegle, 934 Union Trust Building, is chairman of the ticket committee.

Thin Folks! Here's 5 Pounds of Solid Flesh or Money Back

(Advertisement.)

Underweight means your vitality is under par, your strength and energy below normal, so no wonder if you are thin, scrawny, with sunken chest and hollows in your cheeks you always feel down in the mouth, discouraged and rundown in health.

There isn't an underweight man or woman on earth who wouldn't feel better if their weight was what it should be.

That's why every man and woman whose bones are scantily covered and who want to gain in health and have an attractive figure should take advantage of McCoy's offer.

McCoy takes all the risk — Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty-cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 one-dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at May's Drug Stores or any drug store in America.

FIGS AND THISTLES

BUYING early cantaloupes and rushing into an early marriage is betting on the two longest shots in the world.

It looks as though they will soon have to begin making guns, like typewriters and kitchen stoves, in all the latest popular colors. Then the only problem in a woman's life will be to decide on her favorite brand of "insanity."

It takes a lot of OIL to make life sweet and smooth for all of us—olive, castor, motor—and banana!

The divorce lawyers will never starve so long as men continue to attach more importance to what's inside a girl's stocking than to what's inside her head.

The greatest difficulty about observing "Fathers' Day" would be getting Father to stay at HOME long enough to celebrate it.

That sweet, flattering old formula, "I am not worthy of you, darling!" has been changed to, "Look who's going to kiss you—you lucky little thing!"

Turning a devoted lover into an indifferent husband seems to be woman's favorite pastime. But, then, coddling a man is SO much easier than discipling him, and spoiling him so much pleasanter than uplifting him.

No woman should conclude that her husband has forgotten all his graceful little ways and charming manners, until she has a chance to observe him with other women.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator From New York

Pernicious Anemia Comes On Slowly

MANY persons know they are sick and often know what the trouble is, yet do not seek medical aid. There are a number of reasons for this decision. Sometimes it is because they fear the doctor's diagnosis, or the probability of an operation. They may be trusting to what some neighbor has suggested as a "sure cure."

DR. COPELAND

Pernicious anemia is a disease not often recognized until an advanced stage has been reached. In pernicious anemia the sufferer is conscious of being below par, of having difficulty in doing the daily work, and of being extremely irritable. Despite these warnings he may be unwilling to see a doctor.

Pernicious anemia is found as an accompaniment of certain other diseases. It is really an affection of the red blood cells and the marrow of the long bones. It is brought on as the sequel to some toxic condition.

The symptoms of this trouble are somewhat indefinite. Until the disease has reached an advanced stage they are barely noticed. Then appear in rapid succession loss of weight, palpitation of the heart, marked shortness of breath, swelling of the limbs and perhaps of the face, and, finally, a general feeling of ill health. It is difficult for the affected one to do his work.

In certain cases there is no loss of flesh. On the contrary, the fat lies in thick folds on the abdomen, chest and over the ribs. The character of this fat is flabby, that is, it may be picked up between the fingers with the greatest ease.

The color of the skin changes from the natural healthy color of a sort of yellow. The veins stand out through the skin, showing their blue color. The whites of the eyes and the tissues of the eyelids have a bleached appearance.

There are other changes which occur as the disease progresses. But these can be noted by the physician only after a physical examination and a blood analysis have been made.

In the treatment of pernicious anemia, everything which would be fatiguing must be avoided. Long hours of work, long rail trips, sightseeing, worry and anything else which uses up the energy must be forbidden.

Frequent rest periods should be insisted upon.

The diet should be nourishing and, above all, made appetizing. If any special foods are not to be taken the doctor will tell the patient. He will also prescribe the medication.

Greatest good in such a case may be accomplished by helping the sufferer to be cheerful and to enjoy life as he finds it.

Answers to Health Queries

M. C. W. Q.—What will reduce a double chin, the hips and a fleshy upper arm?

A.—Reducing in general will bring about results.

J. T. Q.—Several years ago I had my appendix and a small tumor removed. Since then I have had severe backache. Is albumen dangerous. What are the symptoms and is backache serious? Have tried many kinds of massaging and electricity.

A.—Have an examination to get at the source of the trouble. A careful urinalysis will determine whether or not the kidneys are causing any of the trouble. Whether or not albumen is dangerous depends upon the amount found in the kidney elimination. Application of heat should give temporary relief.

D. H. Q.—What precautions or instructions would be helpful when taking a trip into tropical waters? There will be no land travel.

2—What will help Bell's palsy of the face?

A.—The general rules for good health, being especially careful to avoid rich, heavy foods, overeating, etc., and to keep the system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2—Correction of the particular cause of the trouble. The patient should be under the care of a physician, who will advise the necessary treatment.

Zemo FOR SKIN IRRITATIONS

"A PORTRAIT" -:- Of the Greatest Sheik of All Time -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

THE YOUNG WOMAN ANTICIPATES HIM.

THE OLDER WOMAN REMEMBERS HIM!

THE masculine idol of all the world—more widely thought about, speculated upon, more hung about with the bright-hued chiffon tags of women's curiosity, more worshipped, more press-agented—with the least need of it—swamped with more fanmail, more doted upon, than any other male hero or matinee idol, movie heart-destroyer, soldier or sailor! Shine your eyes on him. Here he is, the arch dream-maker in young and old girls' hearts. Monsieur Le Beau Dan-i-ell Cupeed. All gilt curls and scarlet smiles. Sparks in his eyes that they say enter the skin and take fire there with all the heat of an African flea! Soft manners that enslave you even after you believe him, from some smarting experience, to be a rogue. Hands, whose velvet once felt is never undreamed upon. Feet light to walk upon your heart—like the pink fall of rose leaves. Like all magnetic people—unforgettable, dreamed of, loved, longed for, and memorable!

Young girls sing to him, his picture, his vision, to the idea they have of what he is. And they say with the girl in "She Stoops to Conquer," "Ah me, when shall I marry me?" when shall she see Love's magic face? It can be, she thinks, nothing short of the miracle of the world, to know him! Sometimes, huroor, it IS. And sometimes, alas, it isn't! Heroes are sometimes very different from their pictures.

Older women remember him. For what he has meant; for the dreams he built. Fairy walls with a light from Paradise shining upon them. For the gayety, the sweetness, the romance of the hours he left behind him when one time he went down the road with Youth and forgot to come back. And sometimes they remember him for the pain of that fire beneath the skin I spoke about before. For sometimes they found him different from his pictures, like other and more mortal heroes that we know.

But there he is!—Remember him with tears or smiles or scowls. Dream of him with foreboding or a jumping heart. He remains the greatest idol of all time. And ISN'T he good looking?

—NELL BRINKLEY.

FOR THE LOVELORN

Worried

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am 24 years of age and I have been keeping company with a girl who is going on 24 years of age. When I was 20 years old, I was tricked into marrying a girl. Later she started to run around with other fellows. After seven months of married life I left her and came to Pittsburgh. From then on all I did was work all day and in the evening I would sit around and brood about the whole thing until I nearly went crazy. This kept up for about a year when all of a sudden I noticed that the girl I mentioned above was paying a little attention to me, so in my loneliness I started to take her to a show or take a walk with her in the evening, and it was during one of these walks that I confessed to her and told her of my love for her and she in turn confessed her love for me. Now the point is, her mother does not want her to go with me and she has got the girl so far that she has decided to give me up, but I cannot let her go, for we have been keeping company for two years and I think we both know what we want to do. My divorce is up in court, but it will be several weeks before I will be free. Do you think I am doing right by asking her to wait for me until I am free so that I can have a fair talk with her mother, and also convince the girl that at the age of 20 I did not know the meaning of live. Don't you think the girl is doing the right thing if she goes with me after I am free? She is still afraid that I might do her the same trick that I did to the other girl, although as far as the other girl (my wife) is concerned, she was no good. Can this girl honestly call herself a second wife, when in reality I was not a married man. I love this girl with all my heart and being, but her mother will not give in, even after I am divorced. Don't you think she is old enough to know who she wants to go with?

WORRIED.

This is very unfortunate, of course, but only the girl can decide whether or not she loves you enough to defy the tenets of her church, which would debar her marriage to a divorced man. There is nothing I can do to help you, Worried, because it all rests with the girl. In your eyes you will be perfectly free after your divorce is granted, but in her eyes and her mother's, you will still be married. I see no reason why you shouldn't be happy together, but the girl must make her own decision.

Undecided

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am 19 years of age. I would appreciate it very much if you would answer a few questions. Is it proper to write on one's photograph, when giving it to the boy friend? What should some of the sayings be? I will graduate in June from night school. Should I send an invitation to my boy friends and his family? Best luck and good wishes, Miss Gale.

UNDECIDED.

Don't write anything on the picture, my dear. It isn't good taste. It would be all right to send the boy an invitation to your graduation.

Horoscope

Tuesday, June 12

THIS day's sidereal operations presage many eventful developments of a sudden and surprising nature. These may involve unplanned and radical changes, and although these may not appear to be advantageous it is possible to divert risky situations to beneficial climaxes by good judgment and acumen. The finances receive a helpful ray from Jupiter. Sign all writings cautiously.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which their own good judgment and manipulation of unusual or unforeseen events may be turned to advantage. There may be some hazards and dangers but likewise friendly aid.

A child born on this day may be talented in many directions, possibly in outstanding or singular lines, but it may be restless and erratic as well as adventurous and should be trained to conservatism and responsibility. It should make fine success if it properly uses its original talents and skill.

The lovely complexions you see on the screen—

WHAT charm radiantly fresh smooth skin gives a girl—you know it the instant the close-up is flashed on the screen!

Exquisitely smooth skin is more important for loveliness than anything else, motion picture directors say. Because their skin must be lovely under the cruel lights of the close-up, screen stars guard it very carefully.

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap. There are in Hollywood 433 important actresses, including all stars—417 of these use Lux Toilet Soap. All the great film studios, too, have made it the official soap in their dressing rooms.

"I used to say 'it is impossible—one cannot find a soap of the luxury of imported soaps in America!' Then I found Lux Toilet Soap. As fine as the costliest French soap, makes my skin wonderfully soft and smooth."

Greta Nissen

"A star must have smooth skin," declares pretty BETTY BRONSON. "Everything shows in a close-up. I find this lovely white soap is wonderful for my skin."

GILDA GRAY, who lends her loveliness to United Artists, says, "Only an exquisite skin can look charming in a close-up. I use Lux Toilet Soap for mine—it keeps it like velvet."

How To Be Beautiful by Maria Jeritza

Let Chocolate Aid Your Loveliness.

"I LIKE cocoa and Sunday school," a young gentleman aged four, remarked to me the other day, apropos of nothing at all. Judging by his sturdy little body, complexion of roses and cream, and laughing eyes, both cocoa and Sunday school agree with him well.

Maria Jeritza.

More than one beauty of the stage and screen choose chocolate with whipped cream as a favorite breakfast beverage, because it is delicious and nourishing and has not the nerve exciting after affects of coffee. I confess that I love my morning chocolate with crisp rolls and fresh fruit.

We all know about the chocolate soldier, who performed such deeds of valor on a diet of chocolate creams. As a matter of fact, either chocolate or milk chocolate is usually part of the emergency rations of soldiers, airmen and explorers, because as a food it supplies energy and heat to the body and is easily, quickly digested. But because chocolate is a substantial food, it is well not to nibble at it between meals unless you wish to take on weight. Do you realize that eating three medium-sized chocolates each day for a year, in addition to the food you really need, would cause you to take on about 27 pounds of excess weight?

The best way to eat chocolates is as a dessert in place of any other sweet. But when you serve a saucer of chocolates as a dessert, make sure that the balance of your meal is not fattening, if you are trying to reduce. I woud suggest omitting bread and butter and potatoes on such occasions.

Chocolate is a paste of the ground kernels of the cocoa bean mixed with sugar and flavoring and formed into a cake which is used in making both candies and the beverage, chocolate. Cocoa is also made from the cocoa bean, but has more of the fat taken out. Too much chocolate will upset the digestion and cause the complexion to look pasty or mottled. So you see, chocolate and cocoa can serve your health, pep and beauty or seriously impair them, according to the temperance and discretion you use in making use of them as part of your diet.

The fat removed from the cocoa bean is called cocoa butter. It is a valuable and inexpensive skin food, with a slight odor of chocolate and agrees with almost every type of dry skin. Cocoa butter comes in stick form and is convenient to carry to the beach to rub on the skin when it is exposed to the sun, as a preventive of freckles and sunburn. It is also good for chapped hands.

You should find the following cold cream more than satisfactory if your skin is inclined to be dry.

Oil of almonds, 60 grams; cocoa butter, 12 grams; white wax, 6 grams; spermaceti, 12 grams.

The woman who is intelligent in her beauty quest does not overlook delightful, wholesome aids such as the products of the cocoa bean, including cocoa and chocolate as foods and cocoa butter as a skin emollient.

MILK CAMPAIGN NEEDS FUNDS

Who wants to help save a baby? The Pittsburgh Milk and Ice Association has 300 little mites in its care just at present and all of these must have their full quart of certified milk each day. It takes money to buy milk, but association officials are magicians at stretching dollars and, with their careful management, $1.50 will buy milk for one baby for a week. Isn't there somebody with a spare $1.50 who would like to make such a worthwhile investment as a baby's milk for one whole week?

Or perhaps there is a boy or a girl with a kindly impulse towards giving a benefit for the milk and ice fund. Any youngster who has ever engaged in this sort of fun knows how worthwhile it is and how much satisfaction there is to be had in helping some one else, especially someone who has never before been given a chance to grow strong and to be well.

The fund today amounts to $39.84.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Debuts, Weddings and Benefits to Keep Society Busy During Closing Weeks of June

WELL, here we are at the beginning of the second week of June, and no one has yet suffered, it seems, from a dearth of social activity. Some folks, a while back, were much concerned, for they feared that June was, for the first time in years, going to be a very dull month indeed.

Although the society set is not exhausted already by a hectic, date-crowded calendar, there is plenty to interest even the most "party-minded." Now that the horse show is over, there will be weddings and benefits for the remainder of the month, and something still rather new in this city—June debutante parties. Several years ago, you'll recall, Rosamond Reed, now Mrs. Charles Denby, Jr., made her bow in the spring.

But before I talk about debutante parties of the late spring I want to tell you about an engagement that will, I'm certain, interest you.

The Benjamin Pages, of Colonial Place, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ellen, to Samuel Durand Ringsdorf, son of the Charles Henry Ringsdorfs, of Wilkes-Barre.

Ellen, as perhaps you know, has not been in the best of health for a while, in fact, since last fall, although she is getting better now. It is probable, though, that because of her illness there will be few if any parties given for her at the present time.

Of course you've heard for a long time that Mrs. John Joy Edson, Jr., of "Joy Gardens," Sewickley, was going to bring out her young daughter Jane this month. Mrs. Edson will give a tea in the picturesque garden of her home at 5 o'clock the afternoon of June 23. When one can make one's bow to society in such an exquisite setting as a lovely June garden, who wouldn't like to wait until spring for one's debut?

* * *

Another Sewickley girl will be a June "bud," you'll recall. Virginia Willock, daughter of the Frank Scott Willocks, will be presented, you know, to society at the Allegheny Country Club on June 29.

There will be a number of entertainments given for these spring debbies.

Margaret Perkins, who will marry John Speer Laughlin, of Pittsburgh, on June 22, in the Church of St. Andrew's-on-the-Dunes, Southampton, announced her attendants some time ago, you will remember. Now, I understand, the men of the bridal party have been named. John H. H. Gould, of New Haven, Conn., is going to be the best man and the list of ushers will include Frederick Curtis Perkins, Jr., Margaret's brother; George M. Laughlin III, brother of the bridegroom; his brother-in-law, Erl C. B. Gould, and his cousins, William K. Laughlin and Alexander L. Robinson, all of Pittsburgh; another brother-in-law of Mr. Laughlin, Warren M. Wells, of Strafford, Pa.; J. Verner Scaife, Jr., and John H. Ricketson III, of this city; Francis Fife Symington, of Baltimore, and Carter B. Carnegie, of Cumberland Islands, Ga.

Added to the very short list of July weddings is that of Marjorie Moore Harbison, daughter of the Ralph Warner Harbisons, of Sewickley. She will marry Walter Brooke Stabler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Stabler, of Wilmington, Del., on July 2, I understand. The ceremony will be performed in the Sewickley Presbyterian Church and will be followed by a small reception at "Walmer," the Harbison home at Pine and Woodland roads.

The Charles Frederick Holdships, of Sewickley, will give a dinner in the Allegheny Country Club Saturday for Virginia.

Nearly all of us have hobbies or avocations. I should say that Richard King Mellon's avocation is exhibiting his horses from Rolling Rock. After exhibiting in the Allegheny County Horse Show, the only son of the Richard Beatty Mellons will go to Chicago. There he will be an exhibitor in the nineteenth annual horse show of the South Shore Country Club, of Chicago, June 12 to 16.

Members of Pittsburgh society who form the habit of wintering in California are always, it appears, much entertained in the West. Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman, who usually pays a visit to her Pittsburgh home on her way from Los Angeles to Allenhurst, N. J., was recently the guest of honor at an entertainment given by Mrs. Michael Frances Regan, of Los Angeles.

Bridal parties play an important part in society news these late spring days. Eleanor Lovelace Winter, daughter of Mrs. Frederick W. Winter, of Beechwood boulevard, has just made known her bridal party. She will marry, may I remind you, John Birge, son of the Nathan R. Birges of Schenectady, N. Y., on Saturday, June 23.

Mrs James Irvine of Philadelphia will be her sister's matron of honor. And Barbara Ewing, Mrs. William North Sturtevant of Washington. Barbara Birge, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. John Carrere, of Rochester, N. Y., will be the bridesmaids.

Paul Bonynge of New York will be the best man. The ushers will be Storrs M. Bishop, of Schenectady; Charles Roberts, of Buffalo; John Buckley, of Cleveland; James Irvine, of Philadelphia; Arthur Leonard and Perry Turner, of New York; Willis Stephens, of Detroit, and John Harper of Pittsburgh.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Patricia Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Cox, of Mt. Washington, and Francis Curley, son of Mrs. Catherine Curley, of Mt. Washington, will be solemnized June 20 in St. Justin's Catholic Church by the Rev. John Barry. Miss Helen McCabe will be maid of honor and William Curley, best man.

* * *

Mrs. G. P. Weaklen, of Wellesley avenue, gave a bridge-luncheon Saturday in Webster Hall to announce the engagement of her daughter, Miss Alma Weaklen, to H. T. Connor, of the East End. There were 30 guests.

* * *

At a luncheon given Saturday in their home in Alliquippa street, Dr. and Mrs. S. B. Linhart announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lois Olivia Linhart, to Dayton Leslie Grabill, of Montreal, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Grabill, of Toronto. Miss Linhart is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1924, and Mr. Grabill is a graduate of the University of Toronto. He has since studied at the University of Dijon and the University of Paris, France.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Smith, of Mt. Vernon street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Anna Mae Smith, and Leslie K. Gress, son of Clarke W. Gress, of Hampton avenue, Wilkinsburg. The ceremony was performed last Wednesday.

* * *

Dr. and Mrs. John Walters gave a house dance Friday night in their home in Beaver road, Sewickley, in honor of their daughter, Miss Nancy Walters. There were about 60 guests, members of the younger school group, and they danced on the enclosed veranda and in the downstairs dooms. Palms and ferns were used in the decorations, and the rooms were lighted with Japanese lanterns.

* * *

The marriage of Miss Esther Leonia Zerkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Cope, of Ridgeville street, and Milton R. Brice, son of Mrs. J. H. Brice, of Niles, O., was solemnized last Tuesda, at 5:30 o'clock in the bride's home by the Rev. Dr. H. H. Forsyth, pastor of the Sixth Presbyterian Church. Miss Gertrude Gerheim was maid of honor and Miss Louise Hill and Miss Sally Gibson, bridesmaids, while the flower girl was Sherrie Ella Hatfield. Robert Campbell was best man and the ushers included Milton Finley and Claire Shaw. Addison Brickle played the wedding music. Mr. and Mrs. Brice are taking a Western trip and after June 15 will be at home in Milwaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Drabick, of East Renovo, have made known the marriage of their daughter, Miss Katherine Drabick, and Wilfrid A. Heyl, of Friendship avenue, which was solemnized last Monday morning in St. Lawrence's Catholic Church by the Rev. Philip Callery. Mr. and Mrs. Heyl will be at home in Beechview after July 1.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. William James Gibson, of Crafton, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Irwin Gibson, and William Duncan Patton, of Washington, Pa., which was solemnized Thursday in the Gibson home by the Rev. W. F. Plummer. Only the immediate families were present. Mr. and Mrs. Patton have left for an Eastern trip.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Neel, of Homestead, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Virginia Belle Neel, and Eugene Dewey Rowse, son of Mrs. Edwin F. Rowse, of Brierly Heights, which was solemnized Wednesday morning in Homestead by the Rev. Dr. George M. Hickman, formerly of the First Presbyterian Church of Homestead. After an Eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Rowse will be at home in Morton place, Homestead. The bride attended Pennsylvania State College and Mr. Rowse is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh school of pharmacy.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Ehrhart, of the Schenley Apartments, are spending some time at the Brighton Hotel, Atlantic City.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Bailey, of South Atlantic avenue, will sail Saturday on the Leviathan for London where Mr. Bailey will attend the eighth international dairy congress on appointment by Secretary of State Kellogg. The congress will be held from June 26 to July 4, and later Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will spend two months touring Europe.

* * *

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Mary Rilla Hendrickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hendrickson, of Butler street, Springdale, and Dr. W. Paul Walker, of Maryland avenue, East End, which was solemnized Saturday at noon. After an Eastern trip, Dr. and Mrs. Walker will be at home in the East End.

Past officers of Schenley Court No. 34, Order of the Amaranth, will hold a card party tonight in Serbian Hall, Fifth avenue.

The Greek Club of Bellevue will hold its second summer dance, known as the "homecoming swingout," Friday night at The Pines. H. D. Eaton is chairman.

Miss Marjorie Wallis Allen, of Detroit, is visiting Miss Martha Stem, of Dunmoyle place, on her way home from Sweet Briar College. The girls were classmates at Virginia College in the class of 1927.

MUSSOLINI & THE LIFE STORY of THE MAN OF DESTINY

Fascist Legions' March on Rome Successful

Privations Endured by Divisions on Way to Eternal City

SECOND NEWS SECTION — THE SUN-TELEGRAPH — SPORTS FEATURES

MONDAY, JUNE 11, 1928

Flowers and Bullets

By VITTORIO DE FIORI

CHAPTER XXI.

WHILE this anxious, nerve-racking political battle was in progress, the black-shirted cohorts of Fascism had been relentlessly closing in on the capital. Let us follow them in their epoch-making march along the historic highways of the Roman legions, from the beginning of their mobilization to their triumphal entry into the Eternal City.

BENITO MUSSOLINI

The selection of Perugia as headquarters of the Fascist general staff had not been haphazard. Geographically, Perugia was the fulcrum toward which the three attacking columns, coming respectively from northern Italy, the Adriatic seaboard and the Tyrrhenian coast, would have to converge.

Perugia fell easily into the hands of the Fascist vanguard. On Friday, three mysterious visitors arrived at the Hotel Rufani; they were Michele Bianchi, Gen. De Bono and Italo Balbo. The only missing member of the Quadrumvirate was De Vecchi, who had gone to Rome with Grandi. In the immediate vicinities of Perugia, 3,000 Fascists, under Consul Graziani, lay in concealment.

At 11 o'clock that night the 3,000 Fascists stealthily began their advance. By midnight they were at the city gates. At the same hour, the Prefect, who was in bed, received a surprising call from a Fascist delegation, which gave him half an hour's time to make arrangements for the peaceful occupation of the city. Otherwise. . . But that was superfluous. The Prefect, after making the arrangements, was escorted back to his sleeping quarters, where he vainly tried to regain his lost slumber.

Hasty Occupation

A few minutes sufficed for the occupation of the prefecture, the railway station, the postoffice and all other public buildings. A printing press was requisitioned and began at once to turn out manifestoes to the population, announcing that the buildings were in the hands of the "Fascist government" and that the same thing was occurring at the same time in other Italian cities.

But Rome was still in the hands of the old regime, which shortly afterward made its existence known in a curious way. At 8 o'clock in the morning, the telephone bell in the prefecture rang. Michele Bianchi, who had been sitting up all night, answered.

"Hello!"

"Hello!"

"This is Mr. Ferraris, Premier Facta's secretary, speaking. Whom am I speaking with?"

"Mr. Arcelli."

"Arcelli? I don't think I know you."

"Very well, then, I'll tell you the truth. This is Michele Bianchi."

"Ah! I understand!"

"So much the better!"

And the conversation proceeded in a bitter-sweet fashion, with Bianchi courteously but imperatively requesting Ferraris to inform Facta that the Fascists had seized Perugia, and warning the "fallen government" not to do anything rash and to avoid bloodshed between the Fascists and the regulars, adding that the Quadrumvirate would hold the "fallen government" responsible for all unpleasant incidents that might occur.

Meanwhile, the Fascist army was pouring into Perugia. The military organization of the forces had been carefully worked out, with the troops divided into legions according to the provinces from which they came, and with consuls and inspectors in charge of each division.

An army of occupation of nearly 70,000 men was held in readiness to proceed to Rome, with an immediate reserve of 20,000 of Foligno, under the command of Gen. Zamboni, the hero of Mount Pasubio, and an ultimate reserve from Southern Italy that should have advanced from the South along the Appian Way, had the need for such action arisen.

Joined by Noblewoman

The greatest preoccupation of the leaders was to prevent all conflicts between their men and the regulars. Soldiers and policemen, according to the strict orders issued, were to be sacred, for they were to form the bulwark of the coming Fascist government. Clashes must be avoided at all costs, and the consuls were held personally responsible. Mussolini, who had planned every detail, had appointed regular army generals with a reputation for bravery to command each column. They were to expose their breasts, covered with the emblems of heroism, to the regulars, in case of conflict. If necessary, they were to be the first to sacrifice themselves. But all were ready for sacrifice. The historic motto, "Rome or death!" was on all lips.

During the night from the 27th to the 28th, the general order to advance was given, and the Fascist legions began their historic march.

Gen. Fara's column, 12,000 strong, left Florence for Monterotondo, where it was to join Igliori's forces. A single passenger train was in the station, with no passengers except the Fascists. A noblewoman, bound for Rome, expressed her annoyance at this state of affairs to a Fascist aide-de-camp, a former captain of the shock troops. The latter put all of his Fascist propaganda into play and finally convinced the countess that if she really wanted to go to Rome, the only way to do so was with the Fascist troops. His offer was gratefully accepted, and the countess, joining the Fascists, became the mascot of the Fara and Igliori divisions, with which she shared the hardships of the journey and later entered Rome in triumph through Porta Pia.

War Danger Passes

The two divisions proceeded by train to Orte, but three kilometers from the station they found the tracks torn up and obstructions placed in their way. The track was promptly repaired, but some time was lost.

The men had brought only one day's rations with them, but the population flocked to their rescue. Bread, meat, fruit, vegetables and wine were showered upon the marching columns by the inhabitants of the towns through which they passed. Where food had to be requisitioned, receipts were left which were afterwards converted into cash.

From Orte the Fascists reached Monterotondo by train. Here they were greeted by the welcome news that all danger of civil war was past. Mussolini had been summoned by the King. By a forced march along the Nomentana highway, Fara and Igliori's 20,000 men reached Rome on the afternoon of the following day.

The Bottai division was the only one that entered Rome amid the din of musketry. Bottai had personally directed the mobilization of the Fascists from the Abruzzi and the Marche, who had come down from their mountain homes wearing their picturesque native costumes and armed for the most part with hunting-rifles. Theirs was the strongest and most characteristic legion, consisting, as it did, of the veterans of the Pinerolo Brigade, the heroes of the Isonzo front.

They bivouacked at Villa D'Este, in perfect comfort, with their wants fraternally attended to by the friendly inhabitants. They were impatient to reach Rome, which they held at their mercy by reason of the fact that they had seized the capital's central power house and water main. Bottai kept them at bay all day Sunday. On Monday it became necessary to draw closer to the capital, and the Fascists left

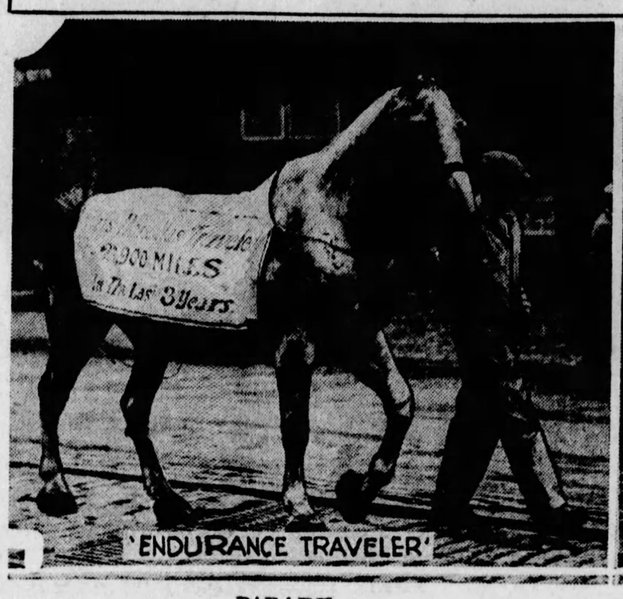
'OLD DOBBIN' HAS HIS DAY—ONCE EACH YEAR



PARADE

The parade of the workhorses on the one day of the year when they have chances to "show off" brought out this proud steed, veteran of 21,900 miles in three years. Guess how many shoes he's worn out.

"UNCLE SAM"

That's "Uncle Sam" on this fiery mount The mount's a pony, yet, but he's a hard-working pony. It's on that his right to step out in the workhorse parade is based. In fact, his right was questioned.

FOUR SHOT IN RESORT FIGHT

Three men are in hospitals and a fourth, also wounded, is being sought by police as a result of a gun battle in an alleged gambling house in Clay way early yesterday. The three in the hospitals are under guard. They are Peter Marabito, alleged proprietor; James Genlite, of 1222 Webster avenue, and Frank Benecese, of 15 Congress street.

Marabito was found at his place of business and removed to the Mercy Hospital. The other men were located later in the McKeesport Hospital, where they had gone for treatment. Police say they have admitted participating in the fight. Moonshine whisky was found in the place, police say.

"RINGSIDE"

Here are what some would term "ringside" seats for the annual Humane Society horse parade. But, ringside or no ringside, they saw everything there was to see. They even saw these little folks in the surrey—is that what it is?—and, of course, sighed.

GIRL PERISHES SAVING CHUM

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., June 11.—(AP.)—After having successfully effected the rescue of a playmate, who had fallen into Little Grave Creek, Imogena Martin, 12, lost her footing and falling into the stream was drowned.

The children were playing on the banks of the stream when Mary Ann Criswell, 6, fell into the water. The Martin girl leaped to her mate's aid and pushed her to safety, but in so doing fell to her own death. Her body was recovered.

Mellon Head Man at Show, Will Finds

KANSAS CITY, June 11.—Yesterday being Sunday (even in a political convention) I just got an idea I would see just how religious all these politicians really are, as I had heard that religion might play some part in the fall festivities. I grab a cab and rush from one church to the other all over town, and not a single candidate, or delegate, or even a delegatress was among the worshippers.

Will Rogers

Still this fall in the campaign you will hear them get up and shout, "Our religion is the bulwark of our great and glorious country, we must continue to be God-fearing people; our church is our salvation." Well, our churches are our salvation, but some of those babies won't be among those rescued.

Yours,

WILL.

P. S.—Everybody is just sitting at the depot waiting for "Uncle" Andy Mellon to come and tell 'em who will be nominated. He is the "head man" in this show.

DANCE CRAZY, DIVES INTO RIVER

Crazed by the strain of 167 hours of continuous dancing, Frank Chille, of Sharpsburg, leaped from the steamer Julia Belle Swain as the boat passed Aliquippa last evening and was picked up by a man in a skiff.

Chille and his partner, Eleanor McLafferty, of Pittsburgh, were the third team to drop out during the day and reduced the list of contestants who had broken local marathon records to five teams.

The dancers began their long grind a week ago in the Nu-Ken Gardens, New Kensington, and to avoid conflict with the Sunday blue laws the dancers, eight couples, and a large following boarded the steamboat Saturday midnight. The boat started for Chester, W. Va.

Returning last night, Chille, who had been one to pep-up the party, suddenly called to his mother and father, who, were on the boat "Hey, Mom, get the police, I've been doped." Efforts were made to quiet the young man, but the ministrations of his parents failed and he dived into the Ohio. He was given shelter in the house of the lock tender nearby. His parents were put ashore and took him to his home in Sharpsburg. This morning he was under the care of a physician.

The Julia Bell Swain brought the dancers to Pittsburgh early today and at Wood street transferred the cargo to the Japanese Garden for the remainder of the trip to New Kensington. The latter boat arrived at New Kensington shortly after noon and the contestants taxied to the Nu-Ken Gardens.

Tony Carlimo, of Pearl street, and Gertrude Keller, of Taylor street, quit the dance with a mark of 152 hours and 15 minutes, and E. L. Lyle, of Leechburg, and Elizabeth Rhoades, of Parnassus, quit on 156 hours.

Five couples remaining in the contest at 2 p. m. with a mark of 192 hours, are Andrew Grassey and Anna Martin, Homestead; Herman Ross and Teresa James, Homewood; John Costello and Helen Socks, Pittsburgh; Josephine Sadoski, Brackenridge, and Silvo Gaio, Pittsburgh, and Dolores Stoller and Edward Carlino, Pittsburgh.

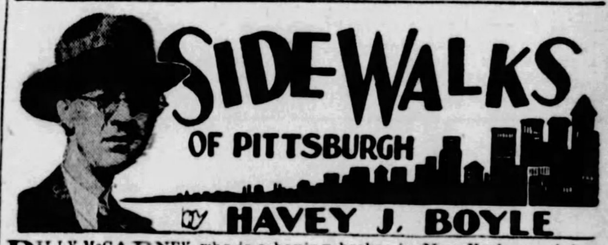
After shuffing about on a river craft for 24 hours, ending last midnight, 16 couples remained in the marathon dance which started Thursday on the stage of the Academy Theater. At 2 p. m. the contestants had been on their feet 90 hours. Alice Ross and Frank Melinere dropped out at 6:15 o'clock this morning, followed closely on the heels of two other couples which were unable to keep up the grind early this morning.

Carrie Nightingale and James Malone quit with a mark of 80 hours and 15 minutes and Margaret Jones and Thomas McBridge retired after dancing 83 hours.

The first international colored endurance dance to be staged in Pittsburgh began at 1:15 o'clock this morning at Motor Square Garden with 34 couples shuffling away to the strains of Lloyd Scotts' orchestra. Included in the list of contestants are Jimmy Wilson and Annie Walker, and Marshall Lewis, three of the colored marathoners who deadlocked at the recent dance derby at Homestead after 145 hours of continuous syncopation.

"Promoters Get It;" Marathon Banned

Tarentum will have to worry along without a marathon dance. Burgess V. L. Henry today declined to issue a permit to a party of promoters who sought to stage a long-distance dance contest. He said the promoters make all the money and contestants are rendered physically unfit by the grind.



BILLY McCARNEY, who is a boxing broker in New York, supplying good boxers to the trade in the provinces, sends word back to his Pittsburgh friend, John McGarvey, "Tell him," said Billy, who is considered one of the best in the racket, "that we had two washouts." Translated, that means it rained two nights to stop a boxing show. "Our hotel nut was so big," said Mr. Carney, referring to the bill, of course, "that I thought of calling a moving van, as I was sure they had sold us the furniture.

Tom Bodkin got us a seat for "Strange Interlude," a play in New York which starts at 5:30 in the evening, closes down while you go out to eat dinner, and resumes about 7:30 to run until 11:30. It has been a sell-out ever since it opened and only subscribers manage to get tickets. However, after Tom made the riffle, we found we couldn't attend. The play is unique in that the characters speak two thoughts—the one they want the listener to hear and the one they keep in reserve. Thus: "I am glad to see you, Mr. Strumpkins," (aloud). The silent thought expressed is an aside: "I think you're an awful pest. Mr. Strumpkins, and I'm sorry I ran into you." The district attorney was asked to censor the play, but not because of the foregoing lines, as you may have suspected.

A LOT of Pittsburghers who used to eat regularly in a certain New York restaurant have deserted the place. The hat girl now frowns unless you pay a quarter for the return of your hat. Before you start ordering, a 25-cent charge goes on your bill for rolls and butter, which seems to be putting it on a bit thick, and we don't mean the butter.

* * *

Mr. McIntyre, who keeps the highest average in writing of New York, will probably go into a rage if he hears how we scooped him on that 25 cent butter and rolls charge. "Local Boy Scores Beat in Big City," is the headline.

* * *

A PITTSBURGH man, who showed us the reply, wrote to Gene Tunney, the heavyweight champion, asking a question. Gene's secretary answered the letter, saying in effect that the champion was so busy now that he could not be disturbed with correspondence. We had been among the few in Mr. Tunney's corner when the charges flew thick and fast that he had turned elevated derby, (high hat) and while this latest bit of nonsense is not going to swerve us, it seems here that Tunney should fire all his secretaries and this likely would give him enough time to answer letters. Probably most of his time is spent now in undoing the mischief of fellows connected with him, who, like a number of secretaries, imagine themselves to be as powerful as the boss.

Once, we managed to get a letter through the secretarial portals and Gene answered the next day. Probably, he got down to the office early that morning and beat the clerks to the punch.

Incidentally, it seems here the most asinine criticism we read of Tunney is that he likes to read good books. Such criticism is a criticism of his critics. If he doesn't start answering his mail, however, we are going to be dubious about Tunney's reading matter. Maybe, they aren't such good books after all.

WHILE in New York recently (that's a good opening chorus) we spoke with the gentleman who is about to stage the Tunney-Heeney affair in New York. We refer to Mr. Rickard. He was not particulary happy. He waved his cane to the small crowd in Madison Square Garden which was then engaged in looking at McTigue meeting the young Jewish lawyer, Armand Emanuel. Boxing, he averred, was in a slump. He was thinking, of course of the large bundle of frogskins he must pay Tunney to meet Heeney, with no definite assurance that the customers will supply an adequate amount to make the affair profitable.

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

MYSTERY! THRILLS! ADVENTURE! LOVE!!!

by FRANK L. PACKARD

The White Man Appears With the Natives; More Trouble

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of Tom Kingsley is picked up by Capt. "Scarface" Sweeney and his mate, Marlow, off Singapore. Tom's brother, Robert, also an old "sea dog," is notified of the death and receives articles found on the corpse. Among these are two small but handsomely carved Ivory Idols. Robert Kingsley has good reason to believe that Hsi Yan, an ancient enemy, has returned after 30 years to seek vengeance. The Idols are stolen and Young Bob starts out to recover them. Hidden in the hold of the ship he overhears five Chinamen plotting. The East Indian "Holy Man" is stabbed to death by one of the Chinamen. The Holy Man turns out to be Verna's brother, and she accuses Bob of the murder. The boat sinks and after many hardships Bob rescues Verna with the help of a Malay whom he had saved. Bob tells Verna his story of the idols.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"THE idol seemingly mattered most of all," she said, her words coming now in even a more labored way than before. "You would take chances on the rest—that is your reputation, isn't it? Desperate chances, if need be. The circumstances, too, were in your favor—if you reached shore at all, you would still be hundreds of miles from either police or authority.

"Besides, I imagine you counted too strongly on the fact that my attitude toward you would be materially affected, and that I would be inclined to give credence to any story you might concoct, because—well, because, believing that you had saved my life by apparently offering your own in exchange, it would be so very human a thing that I should then want to believe you innocent. And so I should—if I had not seen what I did, and if I were not so sure, and if I did not know who you were, and know your reputation."

"Your armor is not easily pierced," he said, a little bitterly. "I suppose, then, that the reason I have forced you to stay here alone with me behind this boat is not for your own safety's sake, but because I had hoped to inveigle you, still hope to inveigle you perhaps, into giving me the idol, since I dare not use force on account of the fact that your outcries would bring those natives over there to your assistance?"

"I suppose so," she answered apathetically. "Or to prevent me from telling my story—but that is now too late. I was close beside Mr. Carter in the boat. I told him what had happened. The serang was next to Mr. Carter, and he heard me. Whoever comes back with the serang will already know all about it."

"But before then," said Bob Kingsley evenly, "there is more to the story, a great deal more, and I am——"

He stopped abruptly. She had put out one hand on the sand as though to prevent herself from falling.

"I—I am very tired," she said weakly. "I—I can't stand any more."

She was a crumpled little heap on the sand.

With a low cry of dismay, he was on his feet. It was not far to the water's edge, but he had nothing in which to carry any water—not even a hat. His hat was gone. He did not remember when or where he had lost it, but it was gone. The boat then! There should be water in the bottom of the boat from the shipped seas. He leaned in over the gunwale. Yes, the whole bottom was still awash with it. He gathered some up in his cupped hands, and turned to splash it in her face—but allowed it to spill upon the sand instead, as she raised her hand in feeble protest. She had not fainted, then, as he had thought; but he realized now what, he told himself with bitter self-reproach, he should have realized long before. She had reached the breaking point. The murder of her brother, the horror and strain of the night, of what she had been through, had taken her beyond her strength both mentally and physically, and he could see now as he bent down over her that she was in a state of almost coma-like exhaustion. If only he had a stimulant of some kind—brandy! But there was none. There was nothing he could do. He took off his jacket, and, removing his revolver from the pocket, folded the jacket and placed it under her head. She made no protest this time—seemed scarcely aware of what he had done.

He sat down on the sand again, his revolver on his knee now, and began a silent vigil. The little crowd out there along the beach remained clustered together, making little or no movement so far as he could see in the darkness. Many of them had perhaps thrown themselves down to sleep. Certainly no one attempted to come in his direction. But, while he kept watch along the beach, his eyes were more often, and more anxiously, on the little figure that lay outstretched on the sand a yard away from him. Occasionally she stirred unrestfully, once she turned and buried her face in her arms, but for the most part she lay very still. At last she seemed to fall into a heavy unnatural slumber, her breathing labored.

Was it hours or minutes that passed? Both were alike interminable. He could not see his watch. His matches had been spoiled when he had sat in the water in the bottom of the boat. Was Aoru farther away than he had supposed? How long would it be now before the serang returned? Perhaps the man hadn't been able to find the place at all—showed some head, anyhow, in not letting all the women and children tramp after him for hours and probably get lost in the darkness! Not likely to be particularly pleasant for one Bob Kingsley, though, when the serang did return! He, Bob Kingsley, would be promptly denounced as a murderer. He shrugged his shoulders grimly. That would have to take care of itself—a lot depended, as he had told himself before, on whom, if any one, the serang brought back with him. What was vital now was that the sooner the man returned, the sooner some sort of assistance might be obtained for Verna.

CHAPTER XXVII.

DAWN began to break. A gray color came into the sky. And then suddenly, as he watched, the knot of natives on the beach began to run wildly toward the line of trees, shouting and yelling joyously, waving their arms, gesticulating frantically. It was just light enough to see now. A man in a white pith helmet was emerging from the trees, and behind him followed a large number of men—20 or 30 at least, Bob Kingsley judged—and, so far as he could make out, all natives.

The sound of the cries roused Verna momentarily. She raised herself slightly on her elbow.

"What is it?" she asked tonelessly.

"The serang is back," Bob Kingsley answered. "There's a white man with him."

Her head dropped back on her arm. She made no comment.

Bob Kingsley stood up. The man in the pith helmet, accompanied by a tall native that he recognized as the Monotah's serang, was coming toward the boat. Bob Kingsley, however, gave these two but a cursory glance. His eyes were searching the body of natives that followed close on the heels of this white man—and, from this group, shifted to the smaller group, mostly the women and children, that remained behind at the spot where the serang with his rescue party had emerged from the trees. Strange! It was quite light enough to see, but neither Chen-shu nor any of the other four Chinamen were anywhere in sight. Nor had he seen them, he remembered now, when the survivors had rushed across the beach to meet the returning serang—but in the helterskelter they might easily have eluded him, and, besides, Verna had distracted his attention at that moment. In any case, there was no sign of them anywhere now. What did it mean? The devils seemed to have a habit of disappearing—but invariably for some sinister purpose or other! Perhaps, though, they were still there, closer in by the trees. No use getting the wind up yet. Some of the natives would know.

I THINK IT IS PITIFUL THE WAY SOME GIRLS ACT JUST TO ATTRACT BOYS. AND NICE GIRLS TOO!
BUT THEN I SUPPOSE -
IT'S JUST AS TERRIBLE THE OTHER WAY ABOUT - I MEAN TO HAVE BOYS THAT YOU CAN'T GET RID OF!

"My dear, I'm so MAD I could SNIFfle SOUP—I mean I ACTually AM, because SOME times I HONestly feel just TOO aSHAMED of my SEX, do you know what I mean? Because f'r instance the other NIGHT at the PARTy, my dear, I've NEVer in my LIFE seen anything LIKE the way these YOUNGer GIRLS ACted, my dear, because I mean practicably ALL of them acted like they were MARKED down to ONE ninety-EIGHT in a BARgain BASEment or something because they made themselves so darned CHEAP, I mean, the way they carried ON with these obNOXious PREP school PIPsqueaks who were swarming round and all! ACTually, my dear, I was all hot and BOTHered about it because I mean I HONestly think SOMEone should SPEAK to their MOTHers about it at this point because I mean the WAY the YOUNGer generAtion is carrying ON at this point is nothing to laugh LIGHTly about, my dear, because these YOUNGer GIRLS, my dear, simply have NO reSERVE or anything, my dear, because they just make a dead SET for the MEN, and I HONestly think it's PERfectly FOUL because I mean men haven't ANY respect for a girl who's the BOLD type, sort of, and just uses her appeal and all to inTRIGUE them, but GOSH I can't for the LIFE of me see WHY these girls are so MAD to have MEN sitting HEAVily round them the entire time, my dear, because I HONestly think the REAL problem is to get RID of them—I mean I ACtually DO!"

Eleanor Lincoln Phones Dicky in the Presence of Madge

I DID not need to wait for Lillian to tell me what was her wager with herself concerning Eleanor Lincoln's "next move" in the matter of posing for Dicky's sketches. When my young neighbor appeared upon the following morning for the lesson in the course of drama-history which Philip Veritzen had outlined for her, she laid a small brief case upon the table.

"Has Mr. Graham a telephone at his studio?" she asked as coolly as if it were the ordinary procedure for a young and attractive girl to ask a woman for her husband's telephone number without vouchsafing any explanation for the request.

"Oh, yes, indeed; how stupid of me not to have given it to you yesterday!"

"What is the best time to get him?" she asked next.

"About half after ten in the forenoon," I said, with the malicious little comment that her chance for the day was gone, for I was sure she neither would go back to The Larches, thus delaying her lesson, nor ask to use the farmhouse telephone. But I reckoned without the audacity—or the ingenuousness of the young woman—I did not know which to call it, for at my answer she looked at the exquisite little watch upon her wrist, made a mental frowning calculation, then looked up at me with an appealing smile.

"Dear Mrs. Graham," she said sweetly, "I wonder if I might use your telephone to call Mr. Graham. I am so anxious to get in touch with him, and it will interrupt the lesson so much if I go back to The Larches."

I was too astonished to be angry. Then, too, Lillian's comforting revelation of the night before had done much to insure me against the inward flaming resentment which the day before had greeted the girl's first proposal to telephone Dicky.

But I could not help acting upon a malicious little impulse which flashed into my mind at her request.

"Of course, you may," I said putting an extra portion of cordiality into my voice. "I'll get him for you right away. I think he'll be there by now. Just come with me."

She was either a good actress or perfectly indifferent to my action, I told myself as I snatched a glance at her faintly smiling face before preceding her down the hall to the telephone.

Dicky's voice was his early morning one, a bit irritated. I guessed that he just had begun a piece of work which he hated to stop.

"Hello! Madge? What is it?" Then with the sharper note which always denotes anxiety. "Is everybody all right? You, Junior? Mother?

An absurd little thrill ran through me as I realized that he had put me first in the category of inquiry.

"Yes, we are all perfectly fit," I assured him.

"Then what—" the irritated note appeared again and I interrupted him hastily.

"Miss Lincoln is here and wishes to speak to you."

"Miss Lincoln!" he repeated and I knew that the amazement in his voice was genuine. "What in the name of the—"

His voice was so strong in its amazement that I was afraid the girl would hear him.

"Here she is now," I said hastily and beckoned Eleanor Lincoln to the telephone.

one can OR six

In your grocery store, you'll hear some women order one can of Heinz Cooked Spaghetti—

Some women order six cans.

Why the difference?

The first women have never tasted it before. They don't know its flavor. They are "trying it".

But the next time they'll probably order six, too. For they will know then that it's as good as they could make themselves and so much less bother.

Mussolini
His Life Story

amid the hails of the population, which showered them with flowers, palm leaves and laurel branches.

As they approached the capital they were besieged by peasants who brought them water, eggs and milk. But at the very gates of Rome they were met by a regular army general, who requested them to change their course in order to avoid passing through San Lorenzo, Rome's Communist suburb. Bottai, conscious of the fact that Igliori and Fara had already preceded him into the capital, curtly refused, and marched up to the gates. Here he made a brief speech to his followers, reminding them that Mussolini was already in power, that they were entering as sustainers of law and order and that they must avoid all unpleasant incidents and even endure insults in silence, if necessary.

The column marched on through the silent gates. The streets of the suburb were deserted. The windows were tightly shut and barred, as if to betoken the hostility of the inmates. Half way through the suburb a window was suddenly opened; but the hand that appeared dropped flowers instead of bombs. There was some applause and cheering on the part of the Fascists as they marched past the friendly window. But the suburb retained its hostile appearance. It seemed to be keeping some unpleasant surprise hidden up its sleeve.

Suddenly the crash of rifle shots rang out. "Halt!" The head of the column stopped abruptly. But it was a sporadic case. The bulk of the division marched on, leaving only the rear guard to keep up its action against the hostile windows. Ten minutes later the battle was over. The column marched on in peace to the Altar of the Fatherland.

Night was falling. The commanders ordered their troops to stand at attention, but the legionaries paid no heed. They had all fallen to their knees before the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier while the Abruzzians of the Teramo cohort laid upon the altar a gigantic wreath that had been religiously carried during the entire march.

One Division Famished

The most proletarian of the columns, so to speak, and the one that passed through the severest hardships, was commanded, by an irony of fate, by a Tuscan patrician of illustrious blood, Marquis Dino Perrone-Compagni, whose blase, aristocratic demeanor remained unruffled in the midst of all the vicissitudes that befell his column. From Tuscany the division, 20,000 strong, came by train to Santa Marinella, a tiny bathing resort, where public buildings were few and small and the palatial villas of the Roman aristocracy hermetically sealed for the winter. Private property had to be respected, for the legionaries were not bandits. And so thousands of men passed a night and a day in the rain, under the dripping trees. But not a complaint escaped their lips, though their feet sank deep in the mud and their military capes were soaked through and through. In fact, they even blessed the rain, because when they had first arrived, parched with thirst, they had found no drinking water, and their attempts to boil and filter the sea water had met with dismal failure.

Hunger also fell to their lot. Food was scarce. Groups of five men were to be seen gathered about a decurion who divided a loaf of bread and the contents of a tin of meat into five rations. Some had nothing but a piece of army biscuit to gnaw upon. Yet they sang and joked.

They had better luck when they reached Civitavecchia, whose friendly inhabitants came to their aid with linen, shoes and overcoats, while the regular military authorities, despite the possibility of a conflict in the immediate future, distributed food to the famished men.

Radicals Reformed

Civitavecchia, however, was still slightly infected with radicalism. In one house the Fascists unearthed about eighty armed Communists. Perrone gave the order to shoot them. But first he decided to harangue them in the public square.

In the course of his oration, he lost his vindictiveness, waxed emotional, and finally told his victims that he would spare their lives and set them free if they would promise to reform and amend their evil ways. Some of the Communists burst into tears at this unprecedented generosity; others cried out: "Long Live Italy! We have been deceived!" The population cheered, and the ex-Communists dispersed to their homes.

Rome was only a few hours away. The march was resumed at once, and the division reached the capital without further incidents.

Perrone and Captain Vitali, a war hero, went to pay their respects to Mussolini, who had just returned from the Quirinal. Mussolini, seeing the gold medal on Vitali's breast, embraced and kissed him repeatedly.

Ordered to Leave Rome

The troops were in a frenzy of joy. At last they were in Rome, amid the festive greetings of the population. Many of them had never seen the capital before. Some had pawned their wives' earrings or sold part of their winter stock of wool to spend a few days in Rome at their own expense.

But Mussolini's stern orders were necessarily pitiless. All must go home immediately after the parade; every Fascist must leave Rome. A few hotheads, a few criminals who might have slipped by chance into the Fascist ranks, might do irreparable damage to the cause. It was hard to leave Rome, beautiful, divine Rome, after traversing its streets and squares in military formation, seeing it only as through a dreamy mist, amid the thunder of applause and showers of roses, with the vision of a gray-haired man at the windows of the Quirinal, surrounded by generals and admirals, smiling at his faithful, devoted Fascist soldiers as they filed past.

But orders were orders! Away from Rome! Now the Facist hosts owed a double duty of obedience, as Fascists and as citizens. Mussolini was at the helm!

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Ill Luck Still Pursues Pirates and Hits Them In Vital Spots, but Opposing Managers Predict They Will Get Back in Race — Grantham May Play in Giant Series Starting Thursday.

NOT only do the adverse baseball fates continue to make the Pittsburgh club their pet victim, but nearly every blow aimed at the Pirates appears to strike them in the spot where it will be most damaging at the time.

Wilbert Robinson.

Scott's attack of grippe came when Comorosky was nursing a lame shoulder and when Barnhart was in a slump; Traynor became ill and Grantham suffered a broken finger when Adams was sick and the infield already had a hole in it; Smith's right leg was severely hurt when Gooch wasn't hitting a lick and punch was needed behind the bat; Meadow's arm went wrong and Hill's back was injured when both Kremer and Miljus were sadly off form.

And now Scott goes into drydock with a wrenched left wrist before Grantham is able to return to first base, and at a time when Pete's hitting was the sensation of the big show and the chief factor in the team's success in winning four of the first five games on the Eastern trip and getting a start for an upward drive.

SO MUCH hard luck has struck the Buccaneers this spring, that even opposing managers are expressing their sympathy and teaching some of the faint-hearted lessons by declaring that the Bushmen still have a chance to reach the top.

Joe McCarthy of the Cubs expressed himself to that effect a few days ago, admitting that Pittsburgh was the most unfortunate team in the league, and now Wilbert Robinson, the Brooklyn skipper, talks in the same strain.

"IT'S only because of the tough luck they have had that the Pirates are not among the leaders," said Robbie. "But even at that Pittsburgh, has a first division team, and any club that's good enough to get in the first division this year may win the pennant with the breaks. I'd like to have Pittsburgh's consistent punch on my own club. That hitting will win a flock of ball games for Donie Bush before the season is over. The Pirates are not so badly off that they can't get well. They can, and very quickly, too."

IF THE Bucs can hold out with Paul Waner on first base until the Philadelphia series ends Wednesday, they may be in pretty good shape again for the opening of the four-game clash with the Giants in New York on Thursday.

Jess Petty.

It is believed unlikely that Scott can resume play as soon as the attending Boston doctor estimated—within three or four days—but a ray of hope appeared in another direction yesterday, when the splints were temporarily removed from Grantham's broken finger and George found that he was able to bend the finger slightly.

The splints were replaced, but the doctor expressed the opinion that Grantham would be able to play in the New York series starting Thursday. It is expected that George will leave Wednesday night to join the Bucs.

REPORTS that Jess Petty's victory over the Cincinnati club Saturday was the first that he ever placed to his credit at the expense of the Reds, were incorrect in a sense. It is true that Petty never won a game he started against the Reds, but he is credited with a victory over them. On August 20, 1925, with a Brooklyn-Cincinnati game tied at 3-all, Osborn was taken out after the seventh inning and Petty was put in. Brooklyn won the game in 10 innings, 4 to 3, and the win, of course, was credited to Petty.

On September 24, last year, McWeeny started a game against Cincinnati, but was taken out after the sixth inning and Clark, a left-hander, pitched the last three innings and got credit for Brooklyn's victory.

Fred Brickell.

THE above are the only interruptions in a long run of success by Cincinnati against Brooklyn's left-handers. No Dodger southpaw has started a game against Cincinnati, gone the route and won since Dutch Ruether did while with the Robins in 1923. Even in Ruether's last year with Brooklyn, 1924, he did not get a decision over the Rhineland gang.

EVEN though he was defeated by a minor league team yesterday in Hartford, the showing of Lee Meadows in holding his opponents to one run was rather encouraging, and gives ground for the hope that he will be of some value in championship games from now on.

ONE encouraging feature of Saturday's double-header to Pittsburgh fans was the improved form shown by John Miljus in pitching the full distance in the second game and winning his third victory of the season. Saturday's game was only the second of the season in which Miljus lasted the route. Prior to that event he had started six games since the opening of the campaign and had been lifted out of five of them.

It will help Pittsburgh's pitching staff a whole lot if Miljus keeps up his new form. With the season two months old, Kremer, Miljus and Meadows have won a total of only five games for the Pirates.

AN EASTERN baseball man asked Miljus to what he attributed his big gain in pitching ability after the Brooklyn club sent him to the minors following the season of 1921, and the Lawrenceville native replied:

"I received many valuable tips about pitching from Wade Killefer. He's a smart baseball man. Just before the Pirates bought me last year the Dodgers were offered a chance to take me, but turned me down because I had been with them before. I'll say I didn't get the worst of it when the Pirates bought me. Donie Bush is a fine boss."

John Miljus.

TWO STANDBYS

McCrady, who plays in the outfield for St. John's, of the City League, formerly starred for the Duquesne University nine and is one of the best utility men in this section. He has 19 stolen bases to his credit so far, is a star leadoff man and is versatile enough to play any position on the team. McGinley, third baseman of Beltzhoover in the County League, is a veteran who has starred for the Beaver Falls team. He is one of the best hitting infielders in the County League.

"BABE RUTH" OF SANDLOTS

Ollie Carnegie is the "Babe Ruth" of the local sandlots. He is one of the most feared, if not the most feared, batters in the County League because of his penchant for pounding out long extra-base wallops.

SCORING HIGH IN OPEN TEST

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

TWO amateurs, J. A. Fownes of Oakmont and Herbert E. Miller, Jr., of Edgewood, paced the early 18-hole finishers in the 36-hole national open tournament qualifying test which attracted 124 of the district's leading links stars to the Oakmont Country Club today.

Fownes, out in a fair 44, came home in 40 to assume the leadership with an 84, and Miller shot 42-42-85 to get a temporary lease on the runner-up position.

SCORING IS HIGH

The scoring generally was very high, but not surprisingly high, for the course is heavy and soggy as a result of recent heavy rains. Well hit balls had little or no roll and approach shots frequently fell short when they landed on the soggy turf. Several entrants found the going so tough that they picked up and withdrew before completing 18 holes of play.

Among those who were expected to place high were Peter O'Hara, of Westmoreland, and Fred McLeod, of Washington, D. C., each of whom went out in 40.

MANNING ERRS

Charley Manning, one of the district's leading pros, turned in a card that earned him a position among the leaders, but his score was held up pending a decision by the rules committee when it was learned that he unknowingly had driven a ball from a wrong tee.

Although the majority of the 124 who teed off in the Oakmont qualifying test are local entrants, three SMART trading managers in the major leagues used to be known as David Harum. Now they're David Barnums.

THE bill to legalize cockfighting in Porto Rico, where it has been prohibited for 24 years, has been vetoed by Governor Tower. The Legislature figured it might as well let the natives enjoy the sport in the open as under cover and do away with unlawfulness and hypocrisy, but the Governor in turning down the bill said he feared that giving the sport official sanction would be considered as a reflection upon the character of the people. He doesn't want to have the Island held up as a horrible example of a place where the national sport consists of an indulgence of a love for a brutal sport.

Now that you know about that, let us go on to the more important problems of the day.

WHO can remember a heavyweight championship boxing bout that has evoked as little enthusiasm as the Gene Tunney-Tom Heeney clash? Here it is less than seven weeks away, and the boys are just getting down to something approaching serious training and getting plenty of air from the newspapers and the public. In former years the training camps of the champion and challenger

QUAKERS MAY GIVE BUCCOS FIGHT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—Well, there's this to be said of the Phillies—they're neutral. They don't care who wins the flag. Yet in baseball's big battlefield the neutrality of the peaceful Quakers is being violated. When the Germans tried to take a short cut through Belgium they were hailed as terrible soldiers. But seven big powers of the National League, in their mad scramble for supremacy have laughed at the soverignity of the little nations. Among those willing to give the Phillies the laugh are the Pirates from the western end of the commonwealth who are in town today for three jamborees with the perennial Cellar Champs.

The Phillies are just about at their worst this year. They are down deeper in the coal hole than ever, but when a man is down, boys—that's the time he's liable to bring one up from the floor. So the Freebooters as they prepare to tie into the Quakers are wary of the last-straw punch which is sometimes a worse blow than the sucker punch.

The main body of Pirates reached here this morning after sojourning in Hartford for a Sunday game. This afternoon the first game of the series in the Baker demi-tasse will be staged if sufficient fans come out to guarantee the salaries of the umpires, groundkeepers and a few others.

HILL TO PITCH

Manager Bush figures on using Carmen Hill on the mound against the Phillies. Manager Shotton of the home entry used five hurlers in the unsuccessful effort to beat the Cubs on Saturday, but Bert has Lefty Sweetland and one or two others available. It would seem that Sweetland is due for the slab ticket.

The Buccos are apt to miss the services of the injured Pete Scott in the event of the appearance of a southpaw on the mound. Scott is a power on the Pirate offensive these days regardless of the style of the pitching, but his absence under a condition as the one expected may be felt.

Paul Waner is all set to go to the gateway post today if Manager Bush cares to put him at the infield job. This move would put a lot of southpaw hitters in the battle.

Charlie Hargreaves is just about sure to receive Hill if Sweetland is the enemy hurler. Hargreaves, by the way, spent an enjoyable Sunday in his home in Trenton. The new Pirate catcher is a native of the New Jersey capital, which is less than than an hour's ride from the City of Brotherly Love.

Pete Scott came over to Philly with the first-string pitchers and catchers. Scott and the batterymen spent a quiet day in Philly. Pete, however, was just as well satisfied, in view of the injured wrist he is nursing. The utility star and his mates rejoiced when the —ray photograph showed no broken bones in the arm.

BUCS BAFFLED

In yesterday's exhibition contest at Hartford, the Buccos were held to three widely scattered hits as the minor leaguers punched out a 2 to 1 triumph. Lee Meadows, who has not tossed a ball for the Buccos in a championship game this season, pitched the first four innings for the Pirates and allowed one run. Walter Tauscher finished the game and permitted another, but he accounted for the only Pirate score with a home run.

The Hartford team got nine hits and scored the winning run in the seventh inning when Krahe singled, went to second on Eisemann's sacrifice and tallied when Watson singled. Watson, inci-

Brignolia Battles LaGrey

BOXING fans of Western Pennsylvania will get their first taste of outdoor fighting of the year tonight when Jim McGirr stages his inaugural show in the Cycler Park arena in McKeesport, with Larry Brignolia, of Erie, and Joey LaGrey, of Johnstown, meeting in the 10-round windup. They are hard-hitting welterweights and a slashing battle is in prospect.

A heavyweight bout between Dick Gibbons, of McKeesport, and Ray Fay, of Charleroi, is booked as the six-round semi-final and two good six-round preliminaries complete a well-balanced card. Allen Beatty, Negro welterweight of McKeesport, and Johnny King, of Fayette City, are down for the second bout and Loe Louder, of Arlington, and Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, for the opener.

Promoter McGirr is looking for a good-sized turnout of the faithful at his popular prices of $1.10 and $2.20.

Pittsburgh district boxers also will appear in bouts at Johnstown, Washington, Pa.; Bellaire, O., and San Francisco tonight. Ike McFowler, Johnstown Negro heavyweight, meets Tiny Jim Herman in the main bout of an open-air show in the Point Stadium at Johnstown, with Hugh Fetzer, of the North Side, boxing Henry Tuella, of Johnstown and Tommy Ward, also of the North Side, meeting Carl Pegee, of Wheeling, in preliminaries. HUNTER DOWNS GENTIEN, FRENCH TENNIS STAR

SCHEVINGER, Holland, June 11.—(AP.)—Francis T. Hunter, second ranking American star, defeated Andre Gentien, of France, in the international tennis tournament here. The scores were 6-2, 6-1, 7-5.

The other singles matches yesterday saw Jean Borotra, of France, beat H. Keats Lester, of England, 6-0, 6-1, 6-3; Matepka, Austria, beat Christian Boussus, France, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 9-7; W. Robson, of Argentina, beat Siedhoff, Germany, 6-4, 6-2, 0-6, 6-1, and Del Castillo, of Argentine, beat his countryman, Zappa, 6-2, 6-0, 2-6, 2-6, 6-0.

ARMOUR AND SMITH TO MEET ON THURSDAY

Tommy Armour, U. S. and Canadian open golf champion, is to oppose Capt. Vernon A. Smith in an 18-hole exhibition match at the New Castle Field Club Thursday afternoon. Smith is the field club pro.

SANDLOT BASEBALL by TOM BIRKS

THE brilliant sunshine brought out the crowds to the sandlot games yesterday, the three big games scheduled being well attended. The best game of the day was flashed at Harlan field, McKees Rocks, where the W. O. W. No. 305 outfit, now playing under the managership of Pop Geers, defeated the Book Shoe nine of the City League by a 5-to-1 score.

The Sullivan Field feature found the St. John's nine on a hitting spree and Joe Dobbs' Immaculate Heart nine bit the dust by a 14-to-0 score.

ROSEMYER pitched a nice game for the Strip nine. The boys from West Penn Park collected only five hits and three of them came in the eighth inning, when Rosemyer eased up. All the St. John's sluggers were taking a healthy cut at the ball.

IT WAS announced at the W. O. W. game that Jack Friels' Tarentum nine would be the attraction at Harlan Field next Sunday. Tarentum made quite an impression when the upriver boys played against St. John's at Sullivan Field and the Rox fans will see a real outfit in action, especially if Pickles Fredericks takes the mound.

UMPIRE DAN BRICKLEY at the St. John's game announced that the Homewood-Brushton nine would be at Sullivan Field Friday evening. On Saturday afternoon the boys with the long hair from the House of David will meet the Strip team with Reliance Life providing the opposition in a City League engagement for the twilight affair.

THE big game this evening will find the Homewood-Brushton County Leaguers meeting the J. L. Thomas nine of the City League under the shadow of Bloomfield Bridge. The last game found the East Enders nosing out the Zappa aggregation after a good game. This evening the Thomas boys are out to take the big leaguers. A large crowd is expected.

BAMBINO AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP.)—Babe Ruth's two home runs in Chicago yesterday gave the Babe a little more leeway in his battle to remain ahead of his record pace last year when he hit 60 homers for a new world's mark. The champion slugger is six games, six days and four homers ahead of his 1927 standing.

On this date last year he had 18 homers against his current 22, and failed to get his twenty-second until June 16, when he pounded Jonathan Zachary, then of St. Louis, at the Yankee Stadium in a game the Yanks won by 8 to 1. That was Ruth's fifty-fourth engagement of the 1927 campaign. The game yesterday was only his forty-eighth.

Each of Ruth's drives were hit with the bases empty. The veteran Urban Faber, was victimized in the fifth, while Ted Lyons was made to feel the force of the Ruthian bat in the ninth after the Yanks were beaten.

BALL HAWK

Welch is a star outfielder with an eagle eye for cutting down drives that are labeled for extra bases, and is a great asset to the Bloomfield club that he represents.

RUBENSTEIN IS CHOSEN AMBRIDGE HIGH COACH

Maurice (Moe) Rubenstein, former Fifth Avenue High and Geneva College star, has been appointed head coach in basketball at Ambridge High School. Rubenstein will act as assistant coach in other lines of sport, besides holding a position on the faculty.

RANGERS HELD TO TIE

DETROIT, June 11.—The Scottish Rangers soccer team, which scored an easy 9-1 victory at Pittsburgh, Saturday, had all it could do to gain a 1-1 tie with the Detroit All-Stars here yesterday. The visitors showed a lot of class but never were able to get out of tight quarters.

WINS GERMAN TITLE

DORTMUND, Germany, June 11.—(AP.)—Ludwig Haymann, of Munich, won the German heavyweight boxing championship last night, when he stopped Franz Diener, former titleholder, in the eighth round of a 15-round match. Diener took such a battering that he could not continue after the eighth round.

were swarming with correspondents long before this stage was reached.

Perhaps the situation is due to Tunney's indifference toward the craft that makes the big battles what they are in the way of gold mines; perhaps it is just a sign of the times, with all boxing shows proving flops, compared with better days.

With the Sammy Mandell-Jimmy McLarnin, Tommy Loughran-Pete Latzo and other outstanding shows fizzling at the gate, the promoters are frothing at the mouth and moaning in anguish, wondering what it is all about and what the end will be. It is reported that Tex Rickard was wailing in a high-pitched tenor while Mike McTigue and Armand Emanuel were doing their stuff before the smallest boxing crowd in the history of the new Madison Square Garden the other night:

"Where, oh, where, are the people going these days that they don't come out to my boxing shows?"

IT may be, as has been suggested, that the people are getting wise to themselves and saving their hard-earned shekels and that the time is not far off when the boxers who have been turning up their noses at small fortunes will have to go to work for a living, taking the promoters with them.

Along with many others, I am wondering how Rickard, for instance, expects, or even hopes, to come out on the long end of the horn with his Tunney-Heeney bout, which will need a postponement or two or some other artificial stimulation if it does not soon begin to show some startling signs of life. This is one show in which Tex cannot let the mob continue to maintain a "Who cares?" attitude, unless he doesn't care what happens to his bankroll.

I FAIL to find anything so remarkable about the rejuvenation of George Sisler since he was waived out of the American League as all through and picked up by Rogers Hornsby to play first base for the Boston Braves. Sisler has regained his batting eye and is playing a good fielding game and making those who figured him a wreck of a once great player look foolish.

However, there have been many similar cases. A change of scenery often works a great change in a player. Forced to fight his way back to hold a job, an old player not infrequently gets a new lease on his professional life and flashes a semblance of the form he knew when he was at the height of his glory. New surroundings give the athlete a fresh outlook, a new inspiration, help him to climb out of the rut, and the necessity of making good anew on a new job does the rest.

THERE'S a new boxer in this section who has done some startling things in the few months he has been with us and should be built up into quite a card if he remains around until the fall campaign gets under way. He is Terry Lingo, formerly of Cincinnati, now under management of Charley Luck of the North Side.

Since he came unheralded and unsung to Pittsburgh, Lingo has beaten Steve O'Malley twice, and Jack Bany, and has knocked out Neal Brogan and Hal Murray of Harrisburg. He has shown both boxing class and a punch and looks like a real lightweight find.

THE 1928 intercollegiate track and field campaign is over. The speeding and hefty athletes are casting longing eyes to the future, a chosen few prepa ring for the Olympic games, the vast majority looking forward to sectional A. A. U. championships and local honors. It has been a stirring season—and, shocking as it may be to the effete East and to the boasting Middle West, the honors of the year belong to the boys from the far slopes of the Pacific coast.

A tabulation of 1928 records, made in bona-fide Intercollegiately guarded meets, including the Drake, Penn, Kansas, Rice, Georgia and Ohio Relays and the Big Ten, I. C. 4-A., N. C. A. A. and the Pacific Coast Conference championship meets, with the resultant crowning of the champions, discloses that no less than six championships belong to coast athletes. Five go to the middle west three to the sunny southland and one, just one to the east.

In the matter of numerical strength, however, the mid-west takes the honors over the other portions of the map, with all five of their champions single ones. Eric Krenz, Bob King Edmunds and Kiser accounted for the six coast titles.

For all its boasted facilities for developing champion weight men, the middle and far west seem unable to develope champion hammer tosser. In 1927 Don Gwinn of Pitt was the Intercollegiate champion, with a mark of 165 feet, 8 inches. He relinquished his title this year, however, to another eastern, Wright of Cornell, whose record is a foot or so under Gwinn's '27 mark. Wright got off the best toss of the year at the I. C. 4-A games three weeks ago with a heave of 167 feet, 7½ inches.

BRACEY DASH CHAMP

The first double champion on the list is Bracey, the sensational sprinter of Rice Institute. Bracey surprised the nation when he equaled the world's record and shattered the N. C. A. A. mark in the century at Chicago last Saturday, stepping the 100 in .09 6-10. He returned to the track one hot dog and three coke's later to equal the N. C. A. A. mark for the furlong. A duel between Bracey and Borah should be a hummer.

Braves to Move Back Stand in Left Field

BOSTON, June 11.—The new left field stand at Braves Field, here, erected just prior to the present season and now regarded as the easiest home run target in the major leagues, is to be moved backward a distance of from 35 to 37 feet, according to a decision arrived at by President Emil Fuchs, of the Braves.

The recent series between the Braves and the Pirates have supplied enough circuit clouts for half a dozen series. Scott, of the Pirates, made five home runs in the series all by himself and the total count has run to 24 in 11 games. Work on moving back the new left field stands will start this week. The shift will move the new bleachers back against the old left field fence.

Net Play To Open June 18

THE fortieth annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships will swing into action under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association on the four clay courts of the Pittsburgh Golf Club a week from today. The tourney, marking as it does the two-score year notch for local competitive netdom, promises much in the way of fast and clever tilting, for, though imported talent may be lacking, the host of West Penn stars certain to attend augurs well for an interesting and highly successful meet.

Competition will be sponsored in men's singles and doubles and in women's singles, with possibility of mixed doubles if there is sufficient call for them. Due to likelihood of a large entry list in the senior events, with consequent clogging of available rectangles, the junior and boys' singles jousting has been postponed until mid-July.

Keen milling for the men's singles title is assured. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace who copped the flagon in 1925 and 1926, missed out on the 1927 conclave because of a journey East to practice on grass before the National Intercollegiates. The spectacular Winged Head driver will be present this time, however, and with the aid of a newly-developed backhand aims to annex his third West Penn crown. Bryon Baur, Erie youth and 1927 victor, will likewise be on deck for the festivities.

COX THIRD TIME STATE CAPTAIN

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 11.—Bill Cox, mile and cross country star of Penn State College, has been elected to his third captaincy of a Lion team when he was made the choice of the track letter men as leader for next year. Cox was captain of the cross country team last fall and was re-elected for the next season following the championship. Cox received his second letter in track by vote of the athletic association. Other track men to receive the awards were: Capt. Bartholomew, Bates, Kilmer, McCracken, Offenhauser, Kittle, Karback, Lee, Filkins, Davis, Hamas, Haskins and Morrill. George Fencil, student manager, was voted the varsity "S" also.

In winning the track letter Steve Hamas was awarded the fourth varsity letter of the year. He is the first Penn State athlete ever to accomplish this feat. He had previously been awarded letters in football, basketball and boxing.

Baseball letters were awarded to 12 members of the team. The men receiving the awards were Capt. Bernard Harrington, Lesko, Van Atta, Haines, Roepke, Lungren, Dobbelaar, Kent, Wolff, Delp, Singley and Jacobson. Frank M. Gager, student manager, received the manager's award of a varsity letter. George Delp, three-sport athlete, was elected captain for next year.

HAGEN, MACKENZIE TIE IN EXHIBITION MATCH

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—(AP.)—Walter Hagen, new British open champion, paired with Roland Mackenzie, Washington amateur star, to square an 18-hole exhibition match yesterday with Tommy Armour, American open champion, and Andy Campbell, a local professional.

The match, held at the Concord Country Club, ended in sensational fashion when Armour made a birdie three on the 459-yard eighteenth hole to even the match. They did not play out the deadlock.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., June 11. (AP.)—Archie Compston, crack British professional, yesterday defeated Mike Brady, of the Wingfoot Golf Club, in an 18-hole exhibition match, 2 and 1. The match was played over the west course of the Wingfoot Club.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—(AP.)—Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge professional, paired with Gene Sarazen, runner-up for the British open title, at Philmont, handed a setback to Max Marston and Jess Sweetser, two former professional amateur champions, by the close margin of 1 up.

BRAVES WALLOP BALL TO WIN EXHIBITION

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 11.—(AP.)—The Boston Braves yesterday trounced the Providence Grays of the Eastern League in an exhibition game by the score of 15 to 4. The big leaguers freely slugged the pitching of Spear and Dunlap.

STAMM A. A. WINS

A two-run rally in the seventh inning enabled the Stamm A. A. to nose out the Braddock Kovals, 4 to 3, at Braddock yesterday afternoon. The score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
St. A. A.	1 0 0 0 0 1 2 0 x—	4	9	1

Batteries — Mehlla and Purp; Kiddo and C. Shroth.

DeMarco boxes Tod Smith, of Canton, in the main bout of a show at Riverside Park, Bellaire, and Monte Sirko, local featherweight, engages Howard Mayberry, of Duluth, in the headliner in the Washington Gardens at Washington. Mickey Solmen and Young Johnson meet in the semi-final and Battling Gizzy and Jackie Richards hook up in preliminaries of the Washington show. Jack Zivic, local welterweight, boxes Young Corbett in a 10-round bout at San Francisco.

Freddie Boylstein, Kittanning lightweight, and Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, mix over the 10-round route at the Fourth Ward Baseball Park, Kittanning, tonight. Jack Kaiser, fighting policeman of Leechburg, meets Young Gemas, of New Kensington, in the six-round heavyweight semi-final, and there will be three four-round bouts, as follows: Jimmy Duffy vs. Mike Von Gray, Young Gore vs. Mike Lucas and Red Frantz vs. Young Scotty.

Georgie Levine boxes Red Whalen and Ernie Jarvis meets Pancho Dencio in 10-round bouts in New York tonight. Joey Sangor boxes Santiago Zorilla at Milwaukee and Garfield Johnson, local Negro light-heavyweight, battles the veteran Tut Jackson at Washington Court House, O.

Otto Von Porat, the Norwegian heavyweight, will attempt a comeback tonight when he meets Tony Stabenau of Buffalo in a 10-round bout at Chicago. Von Porat's long string of American victories was halted recently by Napoleon Dorval of New York.

Following his bout with Tod Smith at Bellaire, O., tonight, Cuddy DeMarco will keep in training for a 10-round battle with Johnny Shupack at Erie Friday night.

DETROIT, June 11.—(AP.)—Ray Keech, of Philadelphia, won the 100-mile dirt track automobile race here yesterday negotiating the distance at an average speed of 77.89 miles an hour.

Fred Frame, of Texas, finished second and Howard Taylor, of Flint, Mich., third. Lou Meyer, of Los Angeles, winner of the 500-mile race at Indianapolis, failed to qualify.

Our 3rd Annual SPECIAL TRADE IN SALE

VALUES BEYOND COMPARE

The big opportunity of the season to trade in your old or new equipment tires at full value and get top quality DUAL TREAD, PROPER SIZE Generals.

Why Pay Extra for First Year Insurance on Tires that Need It

It's the SECOND Year that Makes the Big Hit

Not only the second 10,000 miles, but the uninterrupted service that carries through to the last mile.

The kind of protection you get only when it is built into the tire—protection that cannot be duplicated by any other line.

Not the protection that dodges the question of natural wear and insures against accidents by promising free repairs.

Not the sort of protection that you collect on only by having trouble—But the "top quality" protection that means avoidance of delay, of dirt, of soiled and sometimes spoiled clothing, of ruined tubes through going flat. These are the real protections that car owners want today.

Freedom from trouble and longest uninterrupted tire wear — two to one.

With the present low rubber prices, what's the use of worrying along with the ordinary tire? Take advantage of this Trade-in Sale to still further reduce the first cost. Run this year and next year on Generals for less than you formerly paid for tires of half the mileage.

Forbes

Stocks Now Passing From Strong to Weaker Hands.

By B. C. FORBES

WHEN brokers' loans greatly increase at a time when quotations are falling, the clear indication is that stocks are being sold by wealthy and other investors who owned them outright and are being bought on margin by many.

ALREADY the market has given margin purchasers cause for alarm. Average quotations for railway issues have declined about a dozen points from the peak reached on May tenth, while the industrial list has dropped no less than 18 points since May 19. When such a popular stock as Radio drops, as it did last week, $26 in one day, the dangerous condition of the market becomes very plain.

Public selling, however, thus far has not been heavy, and it would appear as if the principal liquidation has come from very important sources. There are signs that some bull pools have been anxiously seeking to turn their paper profits into cash. This became more evident on Saturday. Public selling also was heavier then than on any previous day since the market began to have spells of irregularity.

We have been told time and again that whenever stocks should become several dollars cheaper, there would be eager buying. Well many stocks are not only several dollars cheaper but anywhere from $10 to $30 cheaper, and so far there has been no tidal wave of buying.

MY GUESS is that if the market starts a really severe decline, the effect will not be to stimulate eager buying but to cause many outsiders to throw down their holdings on the market at whatever price they may bring. And since the number of outsiders has multiplied so tremendously, all the bullish assurances that the market "Cannot break far" may be proved unsound.

The decline in day-to-day loans from the peak of 7 per cent to 5½ per cent in the second half of the week did not act as a tonic. Bankers and other students paid more attention to other monetary developments, such as the firmness in time loans. The continued selling of government securities by the Federal Reserve banks, the further expansion in borrowings from these banks by member banks and the unusually heavy drain upon our diminishing stock of gold—$12,000,000 left for France on Saturday, following a shipment of $10,000,000 to England earlier in the week, although $7,000,000 came from Canada.

THE extraordinarily heavy July first interest and dividend payments looms ahead. The demand at this date is the heaviest of the year with the exception of the January first period. Consequently, the stock market may be further affected by developments in the money market between now and the end of the month.

Whether money thereafter will become cheaper or dearer is debatable. The writer cannot see any reason why rates should go higher if speculation is tamed down before then. Certainly, ordinary business requirements are not sufficient to cause any unusual firmness, even should the loss of gold continue on the rather heavy scale expected. Whether speculation soon will be tamed remains to be seen.

WITH the Republican convention assembling tomorrow and the Democratic convention only two weeks off, it is natural that Wall Street should at last be giving a thought to politics. Had the market been advancing, however, politics would have been ignored. If the relapse goes much further, politics will conveniently be blamed.

The truth is that more of the candidates most prominently mentioned are regarded by responsible financial or business interests as "dangerous." It is taken for granted that Gov. Smith will be nominated, but there is much talk of the possible side-tracking of Secretary Hoover.

NO REALLY striking new business developments have occurred. Sentiment is better.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, June 11.—With favorable weather prevailing for spring wheat and with Liverpool quotations lower, wheat values here underwent an early setback today. Simultaneously, bold advices from North Dakota and Montana reported wheat prospects brightening. Chicago wheat started at ⅝c to 1⅛c decline, but later rallied to a material extent. Corn, oats and provisions were relatively firm, with corn opening unchanged to ⅛c off, and subsequently scoring a moderate general advance.

At noon wheat was ⅝c to ¾c net lower and corn varying from ⅛c decline to ⅝c advance.

In addition to rather auspicious weather northwest and to downturns in Liverpool prices wheat traders took notice today of the fact that the main movement of winter wheat southwest would soon be in progress. Word was also at hand that the amount of wheat on ocean passage was increasing, although yet well below the corresponding total last year.

Meanwhile bearishly inclined traders laid special stress on dispatches telling of a good crop outlook for wheat in the southern half of North Dakota, where, according to a leading expert the indications are for a normal yield, contrasting with unlikelihood of average production in the southern part of the state. Another crop authority telegraphed that conditions in Montana were much better than farther east, evidence of more sub-soil moisture being apparent westward.

The following grain quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.

STOCK MARKET RESISTANCE DEVELOPS

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP.)—Increased resistance to selling pressure developed in today's stock market. Extreme declines of 2 to 10 points developed in a number of high priced specialties, but sharp rebounds developed in several cases and about a score issues, led by Radio, showed independent strength. Numerically, losses again exceeded gains. Trading showed a further falling off in volume, total sales in the first three hours running well below 2,000,000 shares.

The unexpectedly large decline in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation last month, made public after the close of the market on Saturday, and the announcement of price cuts on automobile tires, furnished speculators for the decline plenty of ammunition in their campaign for lower prices. However, the severity of last week's reaction, coupled with the expansion in the short interest, led to expectations of at least a technical rally in many stocks.

Credit conditions showed little change. Call loans renewed at 5½ per cent and a slightly easier undertone was apparent in the time money market. The heavy over-subscription of the recent government financing was widely regarded as a hopeful sign, although the coupon rate of 3⅞ and 4 per cent compares with 3¼ in March and 3½ last November. Political uncertainties continued to have a bearish effect on speculative sentiment.

Among the various industrial groups, coppers showed the best recuperative power while public utilities yielded most readily to selling pressure.

Radio ran up 7 points to 201 and then dipped below 200 on realizing. Baldwin broke 10 points to a new 1928 low at 235 and snapped back to 244. Delaware & Hudson climbed 4½ points, but most of the other rails were heavy. Southern Railway, Union Pacific and Lackawanna losing 2 points or more. Greene Cananea, with a 3-point gain, led the rally in coppers. International Telephone, Abitibi Power, Western Union, Brooklyn Edison, Detroit Edison and American Telephone each lost 2 points or more.

Among the many issues to sink into new low ground for the year were American Hide & Leather preferred, American Seating, Dodge Bros. "A," Great Northern Ore and Kansas City Southern common.

AIRBRAKE LOWER HERE, REFLECTING BREAK IN N. Y.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

MORE things are being done with aluminum every day. Constant experimental work by the Aluminum Company of America is steadily broadening its market. The prediction has been made that we are coming to an aluminum age. The entire history of aluminum has been a story of constant attempts to find products which could be made better from the new metal than from older materials.

BEFORE Charles M. Hall discovered his process for the commercial production of aluminum in 1886, the metal was a scientific curiosity, nothing more. At great trouble and expense a few pieces of jewelry had been made from aluminum and they were the prized treasures of kings.

WHEN Hall finally did launch the embryo of the Aluminum Company he found that he had barely started his work with solution of the technical difficulties. A few novelties were made of the metal, but no one knew what could be done with the strange product. The original production of the first plant, which was in Pittsburgh, was only 30 pounds a day, but even this trivial quantity could not be sold.

ARTHUR V. DAVIS and others who were interested in the early development first had to find things that could be made of aluminum. Then they had to convince manufacturers that their rather expensive product was worth using because of its remarkable qualities. From that day to this they have been steadily selling the public on more uses for aluminum.

ALUMINUM has crept up on the world almost unnoticed. Even today when it is mentioned many people think only of cooking utensils. But aluminum is in our radio sets, our automobiles, our street cars, our power systems, even the tubes in which we buy our tooth paste.

ABOUT 80 per cent of the automobiles being made this year have aluminum pistons. A few have bodies made of aluminum sheets. Most cars have aluminum fittings. Entire automobiles with the exception of the springs have been made from this metal and its alloys. These have been especially made for experimental purposes, but they have proved thoroughly satisfactory. Aluminum Company officials believe that the day of the all-aluminum car is not far off. The gradual adoption of aluminum parts appears to confirm this opinion.

THE Cleveland Electric Railways and the Chicago and Joliet Electric Railway have been experimenting with street cars made almost entirely of aluminum. The initial cost of such equipment is high, but the savings in operating expenses more than compensate for the greater investment. The power saving amounts to 20 per cent in some of this equipment. The weight of the car per passenger is about half that of steel cars.

THE mere difference in pounds is not very impressive, but when it is realized that this is the equivalent of the weight of 20 to 25 passengers, which, in steel cars, would have to be hauled over every mile traveled by the car for the 20-odd years of its life, that means something. Bus lines also are finding that the use of aluminum means money to them.

THE Pennsylvania Railroad is using aluminum chairs in its dining cars. The Mellon National Bank and many other institutions have aluminum furniture. Aviation is putting aluminum in engines, on the wings of planes and on fusilages. Aluminum is reaching into every industry where light weight is a factor.

FOR many years the ability to resist corrosion and the neglible weight of aluminum continued to open new markets, but lack of strength was one stumbling block. The recent development of new alloys, however, has made it possible to substitute aluminum for steel in nearly every appliance except for springs. Locomotive pistons have been made of aluminum. When the same metal that can exert the push to move a mile-long freight train can also be fashioned into an airplane, the aluminum age is at our door.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Down Trent Continues.

The market passed through several intermittent hot and cold spells today as the trading element, nerves on edge, vacillated between the hope of a rally and the fear of further extension of the decline which has been in progress for several days. On the opening the list was called upon to take a lot selling accumulated over the week-end. This was done in fairly orderly manner, after which a rally set in which continued up to around noon. The rally, however, was unconvincing and lacked appearance of stability and soon gave way to another selling wave which took the whole list to even lower levels than were recorded in the first hour. No disorder occurred, but the steady dwindling away of paper profits chilled the traders who have been looking for a big rally and left them with but one hope, and that a dimming one, that the Kansas City convention will nominate Coolidge and pull the market out of the depression. Money conditions showed no material change. Early in the day there was some talk of easier time money rates, but call funds tightened later on when banks withdrew more money to meet their mid-month requirements. The June 15 financing, it is estimated, will mean a turnover of approximately $2,000,000,000.

Wide Break in Bancitaly.

Bancitaly, the investment corporation of the Giannini interests, suffered a wide break at the opening on the New York Curb this morning, the stock selling down to 181 in the first hour, as compared with Saturday's close at 200. The stock later broke to 152. High on the issue a few weeks ago was 223. Until last Friday the recession in the stock was gradual without spectacular features. Late last week, however, it became evident holders were anxious to dispose of shares and the result was the disclosure of a rather thin market. The decline in the stock is a natural accompaniment of the general market adjustment now in progress and reflects declining asset values as represented by Bancitaly's holdings of securities in other corporations. It is assumed that Bancitaly has liquidated some of its holdings, but even the best grade of stocks is affected by such realizing as is now in process, which would have the effect of automatically lowering the value of the securities remaining in the portfolio.

Fisher's Stock Index Up.

Prof. Irving Fisher's stock price index for the past week is 384.1, against 375.7 the preceding week and 365.6 a month ago. Advances in motor accessory shares and other stocks were responsible in a large measure for the past week's gain. Prof. Fisher's commodity index is 97.6 per cent for the past week, against 98 a week ago and 99.6 a month ago.

May Real Estate Financing.

A gain of 64 per cent was made in May in financing through real estate bonds, debentures, collateral trust obligations and land trust certificates compared with a year ago, according to S. W. Straus & Co. The record for the month was 88 issues at a value of $90,172,200, compared with 97 issues valued at $54,801,500. Since January 1 offerings of this type have totaled 404 issues with a value of $387,311,150. For the same period last year there were 465 issues valued at $339,601,000. A considerable proportion of the issues represented refunding operations, it was reported.

McNeel Sees Lower Market.

R. W. McNeel, director of McNeel's Financial Service, characterizes as significant the recent decline in bond prices and declares that for the past 50 years a break in stocks has invariably followed the succession of great public participation, rising interest rates, and falling bond prices. Mr. McNeel's statement says in part: "In every typical speculative cycle accompanied by great public enthusiasm the end of the movement is marked by an increase in interest rates, by a fall in bond prices and then by a fall in stock prices. We have had rising interest rates since the latter part of 1927 and last week call money loaned as high as 7 per cent, the highest since 1921. Bond prices have been falling ever since January 13, and this week touched the lowest point for the year. Even government bonds are off 2 to 4 points and such a high grade railroad bond as Atchison General 4s is down 4 or 5 points. High grade investment preferred stocks such as International Harvester preferred and United States Steel preferred are also down 4 to 5 points."

World Wheat Crop Looks Larger.

Advices reaching the Department of Agriculture indicate wheat acreage for the 1928 harvest in 19 foreign countries at approximately 96,650,000, as against 95,785,000 for the 1927 harvest, it was announced today.

California Crude Output Lower.

Crude oil production in California for the week ended June 9 totaled 644,500 barrels, a decrease of 500 barrels. The Seminole area, Oklahoma, for 24 hours to 7 a. m. Saturday produced 260,230 barrels crude oil, against 262,721 on Friday, and the peak of 527,460 barrels made July 30, 1927. This is the lowest output since the first week of February, 1927.

Says United States Over-Lending Abroad.

The London Financial Times says the steady efflux of gold from the United States during the past few months has lately reached such dimensions as to provide a whole host of rumors. One impression is that the whole movement is deliberately planned for some specific purpose. Another is that the United States has been heavily over-lending, meaning that her foreign loans have been in excess of her export surplus required to finance them.

Firestone Cuts Tires.

The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company announced a reduction in tire prices ranging from 4 per cent to 17 per cent, effective June 11. This action had been rumored in financial circles for several weeks and is a direct result of the abrogation by the British government of the "Stevenson restriction plan," a program having as its purpose the artificial maintenance of crude rubber prices through manipulation of the export price.

The United States Rubber Company, Goodyear, Goodrich, Fisk and all other important tire manufacturers will follow Firestone in cutting tire prices on a basis averaging about 12½ per cent.

Accumulating Kennecott.

Kennecott Copper has been under quiet accumulation in the current reaction. Earnings last year amounted to $6.23 a share, compared with $5.80 in 1926. This balance was shown on an average price of 13.28 cents a pound for copper. Taking into consideration that the price of the metal has not been below 14 cents this year, and that the average for the year should be above that figure, the improved outlook for 1928 earnings may be judged. Kennecott had total assets of $278,000,000 at the end of last year. Practically the entire amount was available as equity for the 4,516,000 shares of stock. Current liabilities were approximately $8,000,000, with no other obligations ahead of the outstanding capital stock.

Watching for Support Points.

There is a growing tendency among market students to select theoretical points at which good support should be forthcoming in the leading stocks. Breaking through such levels on volume would mean that followers of charts would be sellers of the stocks. Thus far outsiders have not been inclined to give much attention to these expected resistance points.

Political Angles.

Political uncertainty is being credited with part responsibility for the reactionary trends recently. It is probable that the outlook will sway quotations from time to time and if the nominations by the two major political parties are considered satisfactory a good recovery could be started. Under the existing conditions, however, the tendency in conservative quarters is to stay on the sidelines until the outlook is clearer.

New Pool in Seminole.

A new Wilcox sand oil pool has been opened in the Seminole area, Oklahoma, through completion of a well in section 19-7-5, Pearson field, Pottawatomie county, for 4,000 barrels daily from 4,122 feet. This well is 10 miles southwest of Little River pool and has important bearing on the general oil situation, since it means additional oil from the prolific Wilcox sand in an area where its possibilities previously had been lightly held. The companies owning the principal acreage in the vicinity include Independent Oil and Gas Company, Magnolia Petroleum Company, Gypsy Oil Company, T. B. Slick, Pierce Petroleum Company and Prairie Oil and Gas Company. It is believed these companies are willing to work out a modified drilling program and to this end have called a meeting for June 12.

Market Between Two Fires.

"The market right now seems to be subject to opposing influences of a tightened money situation and an overbought state tending to depress prices and correct both credit and technical conditions on the other hand, business shows very definite signs of expansion, with prospects of a material upturn in earnings over the remainder of the year," says H. E. Edwards & Co. in "Tempo." "The former perhaps factors appear to us to be the dominating ones, however, with the added element of political uncertainty. We believe that the current reaction will go somewhat further, probably into July, though there is basis for believing that there are elements which will make for a strong market shortly after that time. For the present, however, the majority of stocks do not look at all inviting as trading purchases."

Southeastern Power and Light.

An increase in capitalization from 7,000,000 shares to 8,000,000 shares, through creation of 1,000,000 shares of $5 preferred stock, is proposed by directors of Southeastern Power and Light Company, which serves electricity to hundreds of communities in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina. Present capitalization of 7,000,000 no-par shares is divided into 750,000 shares of $7 preferred, 250,000 shares of $6 preferred, 1,000,000 shares of participating preferred and 5,000,000 shares of common stock.

Coca Cola Prospects.

Coca-Cola Company is understood to be doing good business, despite unseasonable weather in a large part of the country. Earnings are for the year being estimated around $11 a share before taxes. Net profit in 1927 after charges and taxes, was $9,163,155, equal to $9.16 a share. In 1926 the company earned $8.40 a share.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 11.—No sales were reported in the raw sugar market early today. Prices were nominally unchanged at 4.50c duty paid.

The raw sugar futures market opened 1 to 2 points lower under a renewal of tired long liquidation, evidently prompted by the failure of demand for refined to broaden and continued inactivity in the spot market. The London market also was easier. Prices followed the call showed additional losses at midday, ruled about 4 to 5 points net lower. The official Cuban decree segregating 200,000 tons of sugar out of the initial allotment for the United States is expected to be signed some time today.

A fair withdrawal demand was reported in the market for refined sugar but no improvement was noted in new business. Prices were unchanged at 6.05c to 6.10c for fine granulated with some second-hand available at 6.00c.

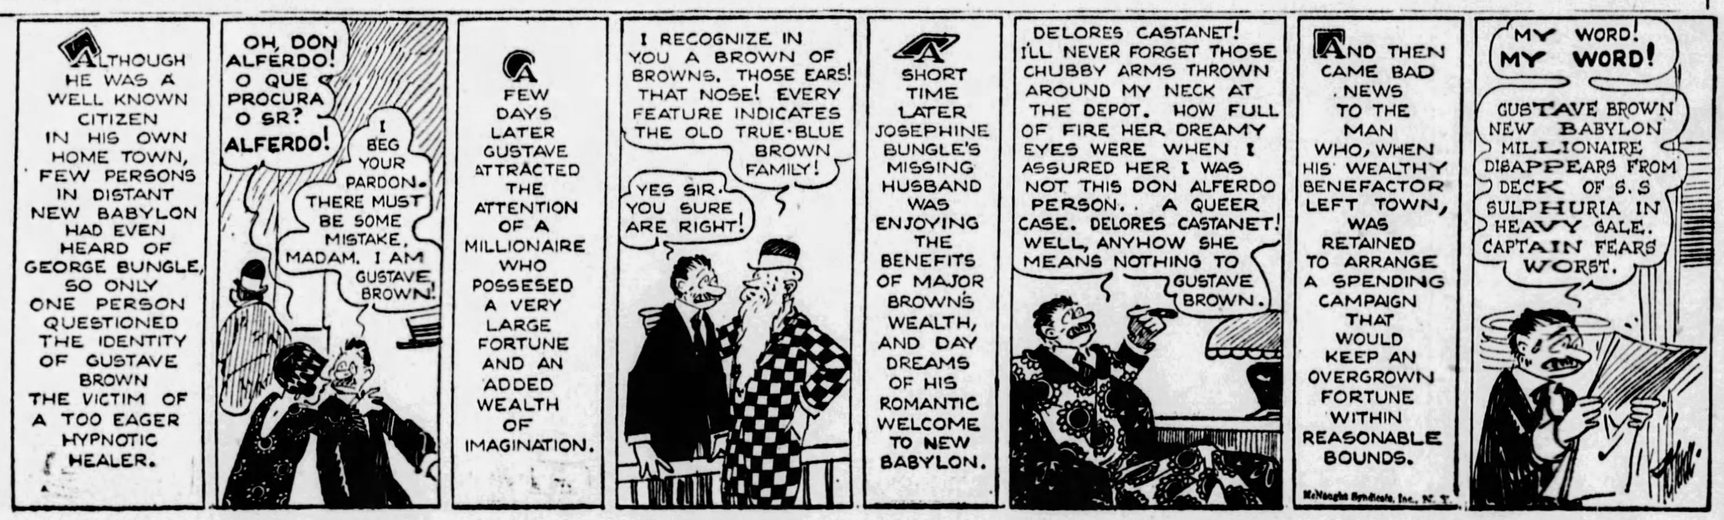
THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Yesterday and Today



ALTHOUGH HE WAS A WELL KNOWN CITIZEN IN HIS OWN HOME TOWN, FEW PERSONS IN DISTANT NEW BABYLON HAD EVEN HEARD OF GEORGE BUNGLE, SO ONLY ONE PERSON QUESTIONED THE IDENTITY OF GUSTAVE BROWN THE VICTIM OF A TOO EAGER HYPNOTIC HEALER.
OH, DON ALFERDO! O QUE PROCURA O SR? ALFERDO!
I BEG YOUR PARDON. THERE MUST BE SOME MISTAKE, MADAM. I AM GUSTAVE BROWN!
A FEW DAYS LATER GUSTAVE ATTRACTED THE ATTENTION OF A MILLIONAIRE WHO POSSESED A VERY LARGE FORTUNE AND AN ADDED WEALTH OF IMAGINATION.
I RECOGNIZE IN YOU A BROWN OF BROWNS. THOSE EARS! THAT NOSE! EVERY FEATURE INDICATES THE OLD TRUE-BLUE BROWN FAMILY!
YES SIR. YOU SURE ARE RIGHT!
A SHORT TIME LATER JOSEPHINE BUNGLE'S MISSING HUSBAND WAS ENJOYING THE BENEFITS OF MAJOR BROWN'S WEALTH, AND DAY DREAMS OF HIS ROMANTIC WELCOME TO NEW BABYLON.
DELORES CASTANET! I'LL NEVER FORGET THOSE CHUBBY ARMS THROWN AROUND MY NECK AT THE DEPOT. HOW FULL OF FIRE HER DREAMY EYES WERE WHEN I ASSURED HER I WAS NOT THIS DON ALFERDO PERSON. A QUEER CASE. DELORES CASTANET! WELL, ANYHOW SHE MEANS NOTHING TO GUSTAVE BROWN.
AND THEN CAME BAD NEWS TO THE MAN WHO, WHEN HIS WEALTHY BENEFACTOR LEFT TOWN, WAS RETAINED TO ARRANGE A SPENDING CAMPAIGN THAT WOULD KEEP AN OVERGROWN FORTUNE WITHIN REASONABLE BOUNDS.

Shippers Look to Railroads For Steel Rate Relief

Eastern trunkline railroads are to hold a meeting in New York June 14—Thursday—to consider the matter of rail-water rates on iron and steel products to the Pacific Coast. Traffic managers of Pittsburgh industries have been invited to attend the meeting, which is held in response to a request of shippers that eastern roads lower rates to permit competition on a basis of the reduction recently announced by the Illinois Central, a reduction that is detrimental to the iron and steel industry of this district.

This is the second fight of the same nature in which Pittsburgh shippers have been compelled to make an appeal, the first having been on coal rates to lake ports, a market which naturally belongs to Pittsburgh, because of proximity, but which was lost because of a "differential" which permitted southern mines to take it. To the layman a differential is a difficult thing to understand. In effect it sometimes means a long haul costs a shipper less than a short one. In other cases it might be only slightly more. The economic idea is that shippers in various parts of the country have access to markets on as even terms as possible.

The "differential" has been a contentious point, which is natural, since the fate of an industry may rest upon freight rates. Unfavorable rates may even set at naught the highest development of improvement in plant equipment and nullify such economic advantage as modern production methods should naturally give.

Pittsburgh has suffered in the matter of coal rates. Now it is confronted by a threat to the prosperity of its steel industry. It is hoped constructive remedial action will develop from the meeting of the trunkline rails this week.

What Say You?

Mrs. Isabell Allen, 56, asks the United States to pay her $200,000 because her son, 37, died after drinking alcohol that had been poisoned by the government.

Vice President Dawes laid Mrs. Allen's claim before the Senate. It was referred to the claims committee. It will probably be a long time before it is heard of again.

The government may say to Mrs. Allen: "Everybody knows, or should know, that the government is putting poison into alcohol. Your son was old enough to know better than to take a chance on drinking poisoned alcohol."

Mrs. Allen might reply to the government: "He was a very foolish boy to take that chance. But a fine or a jail term, NOT CAPITAL PUNISHMENT, is the penalty for foolishly breaking the prohibition law."

If you were on a jury considering Mrs. Allen's claim for damages, what verdict would you vote for?

If MEN Were Like Horses

And if Success Did Not Spoil Them and Their Sons

GAINSBOROUGH A MAGNIFICENT HORSE

This famous horse stands out among successful horses in Great Britain. He won the "Triple Crown"—namely, the Two Thousand Guineas, the Ascot Gold Cup and the St. Leger races. At three years of age, covered with success and glory, he retired to a breeding establishment to perpetuate his good qualities in other horses.

Soon, his sons and daughters had won eighty-three races worth $320,000.

Race horses are not important in the lives of BUSY men. They represent amusement of those that cannot think, allow gambling to take the place of thinking, and imagine that the work of a trainer and a jockey adds something to their glory.

This picture makes you wish that men were as wise as horses, carried their honors as sensibly, and handed their wonderful abilities down to their children.

After he became famous, this horse was as modest as ever. He merely wanted a decent bed to sleep on, and his fair share of oats. He didn't crave magnificent stables in a DOZEN different places, and he did not want to pile up in banks millions of bushels of oats that he could never use. Also the large sums that he earned by his work were NOT used to make fools of his sons and daughters. They, the sons and daughters, also worked and did well.

Let us not complain, however. Providence knows what is best for us. If the ablest MEN had the ablest SONS, the human race would soon be divided up into "ability and worthlessness," which would be a bad thing for us all.

WAY OUT WEST IN KANSAS

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Tarantula Life

THE tarantula, avers Prof. W. J. Baerg, of the University of Arkansas, lives to at least the age of 20 years, and probably to a much greater age. That is the females do, and they seem to confirm Kipling's metrical but unpoetic line, "the female of the species is more deadly than the male."

The male tarantula takes 11 years to grow up into a giant spider; then he falls in love, has offspring and almost immediately dies, "rarely surviving to see another season." The joys of parenthood are the privilege of the female tarantula alone. The male has not even the satisfaction of looking himself until the last year of his life. During all the preceding years he is indistinguishable from the women. Twenty-two times during his long growth out of sexual insignificance, he changes his skin, and the last of these changes makes him every inch, shall I say a tarantulus instead of a tarantula, putting him into a masculine conjugation.

Prof. Baerg knows these facts because he has brought up tarantulas by hand, as it were, in his laboratory. He has had some of these charming eight-leggers under continuous observation for nine years. Think of wishing a happy new year to the same big-hairy spider nine years in succession! Few could bear to do it once.

The life cycle of these spiders has not hitherto been known in science, and some prejudiced persons may wish that it had been found to be shorter. A 20 or 30-year-old tarantula is not a pleasing personage to encounter. He, or rather she, since the males do not attain that advanced age, has no points of beauty for the human eye. The tarantula is the elephant of spiders, and has more than elephantine terror for the startled observer, who finds him, perhaps, in the gold-green bowers of a banana-bunch.

Prof. Baerg tells one nerve-quieting fact about the tarantula, which is that the beast never stalks its prey or leaps upon it from a distance—as its long powerful legs would seem to indicate—but instead, waits motionless at the mouth of its den in the ground until some unfortunate cricket, grasshopper, cockroach, or caterpillar actually touches it in passing, whereupon quick as lightning the terrible fangs seize the victim and the jaws, which in the tarantula move up and down, says Mrs. Cragin, instead of sidewise as in all other spiders, perform their work.

There are many species of tarantulas, or spiders called tarantulas. Some of them spread their stout legs over three or four inches. Some in Southern American climates feed upon small birds, catching them in the trees.

The spider that originally bore the name tarantula is a native of Southern Italy. It is not as large as some of the American species. Tradition ascribed to the poison communicated by its bite the power to produce a nervous disease called "tarantism," which could only be cured by music which aroused the victim out of his lethargy and set him dancing until he fell down exhausted in a profuse perspiration; and this, it was said, eliminated the poison. A well-known dance called the tarantella, derived from this tradition, is still exhibited to travelers in Southern Italy.

It is doubtful whether the bite of even the largest tarantula is fatal to man; but it may produce unpleasant consequences. It won't bite you anyway if you don't touch it. If there are any tarantula philosophers they probably wonder how the Creator came to make such an all-slaughtering monster as man.

Appropriate

IF THE executive headquarters of the nation, during the President's summer rest, are established, as expected, in the Superior (Wis.) Central High School, the symbolism will be significant.

More and more our civic activities are tending to assemble in our public buildings. Many citizens now vote there. In some places they post and receive mail there. In a few places co-operative organizations buy and sell there.

There are many other public functions which would be appropriate in them and tend to make them more than ever centers of civic pride and democratic usefulness. Each new strengthening of the public's bonds with them is a gain for wholesome citizenship.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

It May Be a Hard Job

DO YOU worry much about the future and still go along in your usual way without making any special, continued effort to meet the things you dread?

There's not much use worrying over what is to become of you, if it does not stir you to greater efforts to fortify your future.

Better stop worrying and begin figuring.

You are not willing to change your course, it seems.

It is too easy for you to imagine that fate will change things.

Just out of nothing the good fairies will wave a wand and you will benefit by their generosity.

Things don't happen that way, unless in children's dreams.

You have to make an opening for yourself and push yourself through.

It may be hard work, certainly, but it's not impossible.

But if you keep avoiding hard things, you will not get the necessary nerve and strength to carry you on to success.

Start now while you are able to work.

The longer you wait, the less able you will be to carry on.

You will need all your power to win out.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

To an Old Friend

A LINE and a thought I send
As the day slips by,
It has brought as its gift, old Friend,
An unclouded sky;
But no sunshine the whole year through
Like the sunshiny heart of you!

A thought and a dream I send
As the dusk creeps in:
However my star may ascend
Or what goals I may win,
Though they lead to the Rainbow's End,
Still your love will be best, old Friend.

For all goals that man's pride may get
Are but cold, vain things,
While the love of a friend is set
Too high for pride's wings,
And my sunshine for all life through
Is the sunshiny heart of you!

Tales that are Told

Paterfamilias

RUTGER JEWETT, New York publisher, said at a dinner of the Dutch Treat Club, of which he is secretary:

"There ought to be an annual Father's Day, and the movies ought to give us a couple of hundred father-love films, the same as they gave us all those mother-love films three or four years ago. Though a bachelor, I know whereof I speak.

"Paterfamilias! Poor paterfamilias!

"One afternoon I was sitting in a hot office talking to a fat, pale, perspiring publisher of middle age when a sunburnt young fellow in pinkish oxford bags and a blue jacket with brass buttons hustled in. He was smoking a cigaret in a 10-inch amber tube.

"'Well, dad,' he said cheerily, 'I'm just up from the shore, and I thought I'd run in and say hello.'

"The fat, pale man mopped his wet forehead.

"'Sorry, my boy,' he said, 'but your sister walked off with all my cash half and hour ago. On her way down to the shore she just ran in to say good-by.'"

Too Proud

FRIDAY was an unlucky day for the people in the new house. On that day their new butler arrived and methodically proceeded to make their lives miserable.

"Robisher," said the master one morning, "here is the address of my tailor. Go down there and order a dress suit."

The new butler said nothing. He walked towards the door.

"Do you hear?" thundered the master. "Why don't you answer me?"

The butler turned slowly round and gave his employer a fierce look.

"I never answer," he hissed, "unless I don't 'ear, and than I say 'Wot?' "—London Answers.

The Overactor

LOUIS MARSHALL, a New York lawyer, was criticising a young actor.

"This young fellow," he said, "overacts. I'd like to tell him the anecdote about Dr. Johnson. It would do him good.

"Dr. Johnson was finding fault one day with the acting of his friend, David Garrick, in the ghost scene of 'Hamlet.' He ridiculed Garrick's overacting, and when he finished Boswell said:

"'But that famous start! Wouldn't you, sir, start just as Mr. Garrick does, if you saw a ghost?'

"'I hope not,' said Johnson. 'If I did, I should frighten the ghost.'"

The Selfish Wife

MISS ELLEN GLASGOW, novelist, had come from her Virginia home to sail for Europe, and at the Cosmopolitan Club in New York she talked about divorce.

"Selfishness is the cause of divorce," she said. "A beautiful Richmond girl married a young broker—they're divorced now—and one day the poor fellow had to say to her:

"'Do you know that your dressmakers' bills and beauty parlor bills eat up three-quarters of my income?'

"'My goodness me!' she answered. 'What do you do with all the rest of your money?'"

New York Day by Day

DIARY of a modern Pepys: Up and to see Bluch, the last and best of Hippodrome clowns, a shy, pensive little fellow who has made millions laugh. Yet he finds the professional road rocky, albeit reveals more artistry than 90 per cent of present day vaudeville turns.

To walk in the Negro section of Harlem and an unconscious gaiety and banter there not found elsewhere in the city and surprisingly scant poverty, too. And the cellar cabarets were advertising cake-walk contests, indicating a revival of this high-stepping of the nineties.

In the evening to dinner with Aubrey Eads and Peggy Hoyt, and Brock Pemberton, formerly of Emporia, Kan., was there resplendent in full dress. And an old employer there, too, but to whom I didn't speak, for he never spoke to me when I slaved for him. So to bed.

Lean days have come to animal trainers. There are few places left to exhibit their acts. Cruelty to animal prevention societies caused their undoing. Circuses and vaudeville circuits are banning their appearance. One famous wild animal trainer is now running a small grocery in the Bronx.

Courtney Ryley Cooper tells of an animal trainer who was pounced upon in a cage by an angry leopard and practically torn to ribbons. He was finally rescued and removed to a hospital, where he hovered between life and death for weeks. Recently he was asked what year the accident took place.

"Let me see," he said, wrinkling his brow. "When was it? What happened that year?"

In latter days animal trainers were better protected. Many wore thin undercoats and trunks of steel. And they had further advantage with chunks of poisoned meat and deadly weapons.

The most ferocious wild animal acts were the "cats" or tigers. They nursed a constant, sullen resentment against captors. Few tiger trainers escaped the eventual slashing. They were handled chiefly by intimidation and this cruelty helped bring about the final revolt against all animal acts.

The zebra is the most difficult wild animal to train. The zebra is not ferocious nor unresponsive to human kindness. He is just exasperatingly dumb. Thus ends the lesson in zoology. Tomorrow ichthyology. Bring the kiddies.

At an upper Broadway restaurant there is a white-haired bus "boy" who is stone deaf. In the heydey of the Cafe Lafayette he was the imperious head-waiter. Many waiters, I am told, suffer from ear trouble as much as with sagging arches. The sudden change from heat of the kitchen to the draft of electric fans is said to be responsible.

An ultra apartment house, opening this spring, required 10 letters of reference from prospective tenants. Two bank references were further required and no children or dogs were permitted in the building. Three months later a red hot mamma tenant plugged her sweet papa with a bullet in her boudoir. It shows no matter how careful they are in New York, anything may happen when love scoots out the window.

In apartment houses where slippery and philandering gentlemen are known by names not their own, the elevator operators call them "eels." And elevator men consider such posts the best in the city, because tipping is likely to be more elegant.

One of the Great Neck comedians received a telephone call the other evening to join a poker game. "I can't go out tonight," he said. "It is the nurse's night IN."

An Adventure in International Good Will

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

A plan is on foot to send to each primary school in a Mexican village, from schools in America, a friendship school bag.

This is an adventure in good will toward Mexico that will do much toward counteracting the effects of mischief makers who, on account of business matters, are desirous of making trouble with Mexico.

A similar project dealing with Japan was carried out not long ago with dolls as messengers of friendship, and aroused enthusiasm and response beyond the dream of the sponsors.

The idea is to send friendship school bags to the younger children of Mexico. These bags are chosen for the expression of friendliness because of the great movement in that land for popular education.

The bags, which are durable, in three colors, and beautifully embossed, may be otained from the committee, 289 Fourth avenue, New York City. They may be filled with serviceable and appropriate gifts having some connection with school life. These bags are being sent to the Department of Education in Mexico City for distribution among the primary children on Mexico's Independence Day, September 16.

Some have already arrived, and Dr. Moises Saenz writes that the Department of Education is "thrilled" with this evidence of the friendliness of the American children.

A letter of introduction is included in each friendship bag, together with two pictures of two Great Mexican heroes, one of Washington and Lincoln, also one of Lindbergh, who is well known to the children of Mexico everywhere. There will be letters in them telling of school life and recreation and pastimes.

This is bringing geography right home to the child and is real education.

Over 6,000 bags have been sent out and orders are coming in every day.

Churches and church federations, schools and women's societies are co-operating. Generous responses have been received from Worcester, Mass., and Nebraska announces a goal of two bags from every children's group in the state. Indiana and Ohio are hard at work. Rochester, N. Y., aims for 1,000 bags. St. Louis, Portland, Me., Buffalo and Chicago, as well as California and the South are enthusiastically supporting the plan. Much may be made of the "send off" or farewell ceremony for the bags.

Those who desire to take occasion to celebrate this movement may communicate with United States Commissioner of Education John J. Tigert, at Washington, D. C. President Augustus O. Thomas, of the World Federation of Educational Associations, many state commissioners of education and the Mexican Department of Education heartily indorse the plan.

The last bag should be in Mexico City by the end of August.

It is little things like this that cement international friendship.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

MME. MAIRE runs what is probably the third best hotel in Bangkok, Siam, in point of physical equipment. The other two are palaces. Hers, the Oriental, is a big wandering barrack of a place on the river front—clean enough, but ancient even for Bangkok. And all the men who travel the route that begins at Tientsin and ends at Rangoon stay at the Oriental. Pourquoi? The personality of Mme. Marie.

A traveler tells me that off hand he would say she is the best-known woman (among occidentals) in all the East. He says that he first heard of her in Tokio and heard of her repeatedly after that whenever he mentioned in front of a commercial traveler that he was going to Siam. One had tears in his eyes, told how Mme. Maire had sat up night after night nursing him through blackwater fever.

There are many stories of financial backing given to other men who had contrived to come up to Bangkok of all cities in the world, and go broke! All men speak of Mme. Maire with the highest respect, and resent the obvious implication that love or loneliness might have had anything to do with her various kindnesses.

When the traveler saw her, he tells me he was convinced that they spoke the truth. Mme. Maire is either French or Swiss. She speaks most all languages well. Somewhere in the background she has a husband whom one never sees, but there is never any doubt concerning her personal status. But even if there were no husband one feels that Mme. Maire would still be spreading out her affections without any dangerous concentrations.

This remarkable woman is close to 50 but looks about 30, easy to look at, delightful company, without seeming to be, she can wheedle a customer out of any complaint, and she can move regular patrons out of their rooms into cots in the lounge to make room for a tourist party, and have all hands happy and satisfied at the finish.

When the traveler left he said Mme. Maire came down at 5 in the morning to tell the party goodby. He said to her: "With your personality, you ought to be running a big hotel in New York. You are wasted here."

She answered: "Where we cast our lot we must die." She was not being dramatic: "I shall never see anything but Bangkok," she said, "the gray river and the thousands of ships. I try not to think that all these ships are going home . . . I am too old now to make a change. I have a daughter in Hollywood, a son in France and a daughter in Calcutta. That is the worst penalty one pays for life out in these corners of the world . . . But I shall never go away."
